Something is lost when you use Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. It's Catarrh. The worst cases yield to its mild, soothing, cleansing, and healing properties. No matter how bad your case, or of how long standing, you can be cured. Incurable cases are rare. It's worth $500 to you, if you have one. The manufacturers of Dr. Sage's Remedy are looking for them. They'll pay you that amount in cash, if they can't cure you. It's a plain square offer from a responsible business house, and they mean it. It seems too one-sided, too much of a risk. It would be—with any other medicine behind it. It only goes to prove what's been said: incurable cases are rare—with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy.

Other so-called remedies may palliate for a time; this cures for all time. By its mild, soothing, cleansing and healing properties, it conquers the worst cases. It removes offensive breath, loss or impairment of the sense of taste, smell or hearing, watering or weak eyes, when caused by the violence of Catarrh, as they all frequently are.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 18, 1892.

I, James F. Pierce, Superintendent of Insurance, hereby certify that, after a thorough and complete examination of the assets and liabilities of the American Casualty Insurance and Security Company of Baltimore City, made by the examiners appointed on behalf of this department, as of 31st December, 1891, I find the financial condition of said company to be as follows:

Total Assets	$2,208,599.07
Total Liabilities, including $1,000,000 Capital	2,133,716.22
Surplus beyond all Liabilities	74,882.85

The net surplus shown in the company's statement is $158,280.49, while in the above statement it is only $74,882.85, the difference being caused by increasing the unearned premiums $67,697.64 according to the ruling of this department.

The Maryland Commissioner does not require that the sums paid by persons taking out policies on steam boilers for inspection shall be included in the premiums paid, or form any part of the basis for the calculation of the reserve. This department adopted a different rule some years ago, and includes the inspection charges in its computation of reserve, and the addition to the reserve is caused by adherence to that rule.

I have also added, a further liability to unpaid losses of $15,700, it being the rule of this department to require companies to charge the full amount of all outstanding losses until finally settled, judiciously or otherwise.

SEN. DAVID B. HILL

Makes a Platform for Democrats.

No Voice of Opposition in the Convention,

But Rumblings of Discontent on the Outside.

Another Convention Called for May 31.

Two Delegations Will Represent the Empire State in the Chicago Convention, and Who Can Tell What the Outcome Will Be!

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 23.—The convention here yesterday elected a solid Hill delegation to Chicago headed by the following delegates-at-large:

Roswell P. Flower, Edward P. Murphy, Jr., Daniel E. Sickles, Henry W. Slocum.

Alternates—Manton Marble, John Bigelow, Sydney Webster, Alfred G. Chapin.

"The democratic party of the state of New York in convention assembled renews the pledge of its fidelity to the great cause of tariff reform, and to the whole democratic faith and tradition, as affirmed in our national platform from 1876 to 1888, as well as in our state platforms concurrent with the opening of Geo. Tilden's brief, and the close of Gov. Hill's long thrice approved and alike illustrious service in the chief magistracy of the Empire state.

New York State Platform 1874.

1. Gold and silver the only legal tender; no currency inconvertible with coin.
2. Steady steps toward specie payments; no step backward.
3. Honest payment of the public debt in coin, sacred preservation of the public faith.
4. Revenue reform; federal taxation for revenue only; no government partnership with protected monopolies.
5. Home rule, to limit and localize most jealously the few powers instrusted to public servants, municipal and federal; no centralization.
6. Equal and exact justice to all men; no partial legislation; no partial taxation.
7. The presidency a public trust; not a private perquisite; no third term.
8. Economy in the public expense that labor may be lightly burdened.

New York State Platform, 1891.

"We now, as then, steadfastly adhere to the principles of a sound finance.

"We are against the coinage of any silver dollar which is not of the intrinsic value of every other dollar of the United States.

"We, therefore, denounce the new Sherman silver law under which one-tenth of our gold stock has been exported and all our silver output is dammed up at home as a false pretence, but actual hindrance of return to free bi-metallic coinage and as tending only to produce a change from one kind of monometallism to another.

"We, therefore, unite with the friends of honest money everywhere in stigmatizing the Sherman progressive silver basis law as no solution of the gold and silver question and as a fit appendix to the subsidy and bounty swindle, the McKinley worse than war tariff, the Blaine reciprocity humbug, the squandered surplus, the advancing deficit, the defective census and falsified representation, and the revolutionary procedures of the billion dollar congress—all justly condemned by the people's great uprising last November (1890)—a verdict which renewed next year (1892) will empower democratic statesmen to guide the people's councils and to execute the people's will."

The democrats of New York recall with proud memory the inflexibly sound finance of Gov. Tilden, who not only administered the state government with frugality, but who also with unequalled ability and unflagging resolution demanded a thorough reform of tariff taxation and likewise, with a statesman's energy and foresight, assailed the shameless degredation of our greenback currency, and led the democratic party in pushing on the compulsory republican advance to a current coinage redemption if not also to that coin payment of the same, whereto, as well, "the faith of the United States is solemnly pledged."

The democrats of New York refer with grateful pride to the inflexibly sound finance of Gov. Hill, who by efficient economy throughout his long administrative career has accomplished the practical extinction of our state debt, has faithfully urged with a powerful and practical advocacy the nation's release from the bondage of unequal, unnecessary and unjust taxation imposed by the tariff of 1883, and the repeal of the super-added impositions of the two McKinley laws; and likewise with a statesman's energy and true foresight of the 70-cent dollar pushing for birth in the body of the Sherman silver law, has taken up the people's cause, assailed the republican degradation of the people's silver money, and led to the advance of the democratic party of New York with unfaltering steps to that solid ground of justice and equity upon which they stand to-day absolutely without discord or division, in this behalf "demanding" with him "that every dollar coined in these United States shall be the equal of every other dollar so coined and demanding the redress of their present shameless inequality."

The democrats of New York, with proud hope, yet with perfect deference to their brethren of other states and cordial estimation of their renowned leaders as worthy standard bearers of a people's cause, point to the nomination of David B. Hill to the office of president as a fit expression of the whole democratic faith and tradition of our settled purpose to rescue this perverted government from the clutch of autocrats and plutocrats, from a spendthrift administration, odious taxes and debased money.

In obedience to the mandate of the democratic voters of New York, the delegates elected by this convention are instructed to present to the national democratic convention the name of David B. Hill as the candidate for president of the United States, a democrat who has led his party from victory to victory for seven successive years, and who has never known defeat.

The said delegates are further instructed to act as a unit in all matters entrusted to their charge, said action to be determined by the vote of a majority of delegates.

Resolved, That we congratulate the people of the state upon the auspicious opening of Gov. Flower's administration, and extend to him the assurance of our cordial support in his earnest effort to give the people a frugal, honest and effective government of state affairs.

After the passage of the resolution instructing the delegates to vote for David B. Hill, the committee of escort entered the hall accompanied by the senator. When he was recognized the applause made the hall a perfect pandemonium, when it subsided Gen. Sickles introduced the favorite of the convention as "The young hickory of democracy, our next presidential candidate, David B. Hill."

Then came more cheers and added din, and Mr. Hill stood waiting, his face very pale and one hand tightly gripped in nervous tension.

At length the noise subsided and Senator Hill spoke. He said:

Senator Hill's Address.

Fellow Democrats: Your committee summoning me to this presence have apprised me of that unanimous vote which will make known your approval of me to the authorized representatives of the democracy of the United States and be recorded in the annals of our national convention.

With what terms shall I acknowledge this official act of my fellow democrats, which instead of pointing to some new untried career, might amply reward and crown the labors of the longest life. From that great Cardinal whose "Lead Kindly Light" has touched the hearts of all christendom, let my gratitude humbly borrow this worthier response than I myself could ever frame to the great democracy whom you represent. My respect for them obliges me to submit to their praise as to a grave and emphatic judgment upon me, which it would be rude to question, unthankful not to be proud of, and impossible ever to forget. The re-awakening of the democracy all over our land is the most auspicious sign of the times. When the people of France rose against oppression, a hundred years ago, it meant revolution, a change of rulers and a social earthquake.

When the democracy of America rise, it means an upheaval at the ballot box, a change of their servants, and political reform. This is true democracy. This is government of, by and for the people.

When you see the farmers arousing and allied, when you see all the federations of labor stirring; when you see in every state the greatest democratic party up and afoot, it means that the reign of plutocrats is nearly over and the bright day of democracy is approaching dawn.

The use of political parties is to promote the expression of the people's mandates. The function of statesmen is to frame and execute the same by just and equal laws. The democratic party has this proud record. It is swift in its response to the people's needs. It makes choice of safe and wise statesmen to the statutory landmarks of the people's progress and releases their energies to an even larger liberty.

Democracy is progress. Liberty is its vital air. Constitutions and laws are the voluntary, self-imposed safeguards of democracy. If any words of mine could reach every fireside in our land, this is what I would ask my fellow countrymen at this time to consider.

All our troubles, all our dangers at this very hour, after so many years of republican rule, are the direct consequences of that rule, and flow from unconstitutional legislation by the very men who sit in shivering fits over what the democracy will do with power. On the other hand, the democratic party, which trusts the people will see all "laws based upon a people's will," is precisely that party whose creed has always been a strict interpretation of the constitution and confinement of the government to a few specific granted powers.

I commend those contrasted facts to my fellow countrymen for neighborly debate and fireside meditation till the snow melts. The republican party neither trusts the people nor obeys them. It now requires another upheaval at the ballot box like that of 1890 to be convinced that the wicked work of the billion-dollar congress must be repealed and the people's will obeyed.

Fellow democrats, I rejoice to know by these infallible signs, by the ground swell, by the re-awakening of the democratic hosts, by the arousal of noble and young ambitions through our land, that we are advancing to a cordial union and an overwhelming triumph.

We are advancing to a final renewal of the nation's verdict in the mad, insensate reign of autocrats and plutocrats in the billion-dollar congress, whereby their verdict now scoffed at and stayed shall have sufficient execution in the election of both branches of federal congress and federal executive obedient to the sovereign people's will.

Continuing, Mr. Hill said: "The Sherman silver law now transforms the federal coinage power of silver and gold into an instrument for the gradual expulsion of our gold, for the establishment of an exclusive basis and for the permanent reduction of every American dollar by 30 per cent. or more below the level of its true value during the whole period of our free bi-metallic coinage from 1792 to 1873. Shall such a law stand? There has been no such legislation for free men since Cromwell called the law of England a 'fortuous and ungodly jumble.' The demand for repeal of these edicts of the billion-dollar congress has extorted from republican leaders their published purpose to refuse to repeal. Repeal is not a proposal to stop at the tariff of 1883 as a finality.

"My language expressly barred out that absurd idea. Moreover, when the tariff of 1883 was the law of the land in the hour of our defeat three years ago I said here at Albany: 'The democratic party nails to the mast the flag of tariff reform.'

"Tariff reform will remain and require progressive solution with the wise and politic method of abolishing, whenever practicable, one after another, one indefensible tax at a time, where the McKinley law of to-day placed the tariff of 1883. But I do not flinch backward from the advance line of entrenchment which the democrats of New York have won, kept and will guard. I do not shirk a deadly grapple with the republican revolutionists whose banners no longer fly the tariff of 1883, but now fly the mad McKinley law and the wild Sherman law, and mock us from the citadels of power.

"The cause of tariff reform has lately made a great practical advance. Secretary Manning, in his last report of 1886, advised congress to begin practical tariff reform by a single act, an act for free wool; an act untaxing the clothing of about 60,000,000 people. One year later, in 1887, the secretary's report was writ large in a message of the president. Now five years later one of our most enlightened economists, David A. Wells, writes to the chairman of the ways and means committee that the path of progress which Secretary Manning blazed first and alone, is the true path.

"It is a maxim of sound policy, better fitted to win elections than to lose them; better dividing into easy chapters the lessons of a long campaign of education, abolish whenever you can, one after another, one indefensible tax at a time. This is true progress. Let us rejoice. The senate and the executive may now refuse the least, as they refused the largest measure of tariff reform. But of the future of our cause we may now feel better assured."

The speech was intently listened to, and while not broken often by applause, it was cheered loudly at its close, and the band played "Three Cheers for the Red, White and Blue." The motion to adjourn came quickly then, and the convention at 5:30 p. m. adjourned sine die.

The Anti-Hill Men.

When the Hill convention was in session the anti-Hill people gathered at Union hall and issued a call for a state convention at Syracuse on May 31, for the purpose of electing another delegation to the Chicago national convention.

The Address.

The address issued is as follows:

To the Democratic Electors of the State of New York: The present democratic committee was appointed by the state convention of 1891. Its controlling membership was secured at that convention by the admission of numerous irregular contesting delegations and by the exclusion of delegates regularly elected by the majority of the democratic voters.

The state committee has complete control over the machinery by which the delegates may obtain seats in the convention. It exercises absolute jurisdiction in making up the preliminary roll which determines the membership of the committee on contested seats. The experience of 1891 has taught you that no matter how complete and emphatic the vote may be in the caucuses or in the assembly district conventions, if the result is not satisfactory the delegates chosen by the democratic electors will be set aside in favor of a delegation having no shadow of right except subserviency to the state committee.

The issues involved in the pending campaign are of the utmost gravity. These issues are tariff reform, in accordance with the principles of the platforms of 1876 and 1888, and honest money, by which is meant the preservation at all times of an equality of the intrinsic values of our gold and silver currencies. All the democratic electors of this state are entitled to be fairly represented in a convention called to declare the sentiment of the state on these issues and its preference as to the standard bearer best qualified to secure their triumphant vindication at the polls.

The uniform democratic usage for the past 20 years by which the quadrennial convention to elect presidential delegates have been held not earlier than the middle of the month of April, has become so established as to have the force of party law. It is the duty of party officials to follow the usages of the party and to call conventions in the accustomed manner. The action of the state committee in suddenly calling a convention in mid-winter in the interest of a particular candidate denied to the electors the full and fair representation to which they were entitled. For the first time in the history of the party we find the state committee enlisted in the cause of a favored candidate who shrinks from submitting his case to the test of a full and free vote of the democracy. It has used its powers for the avowed purpose of serving his personal ambition instead of affording to all the democratic electors an equal and fair opportunity to express their preferences both as to the issues and candidates. It has become the instrument of a faction instead of being the representative of the whole party.

The welfare of the party both in this state and in the nation demands that all the democratic electors be equally heard and represented. It is the right of the voters when this privilege is not afforded them, to act for themselves.

Pursuant, therefore, to the demands of many thousand democratic voters in the city of New York, who gave a formal expression to their wishes at a public meeting held at Cooper Union the 11th day of February, and of a similar expression from many thousand democrats of Kings county, and of similar demands made by democrats in the counties of Albany, Cattaraugus, Chautauqua, Erie, Genesee, Greene, Herkimer, Livingston, Madison, Monroe, Montgomery, Niagara, Oneida, Onondaga, Ontario, Orange, Orleans, Otsego, Queens, Rockland, Schenectady, Schoharie, Westchester and Wyoming.

Resolved, That the democratic electors of each assembly district in the state are hereby requested to re-choose three delegates and three alternates at assembly district conventions, which shall be constituted by primaries, held in no case earlier than the first day of May, and on not less than five days' public notice of the time and place of holding the same to form a state convention, to be held on the 31st day of May at Syracuse, for the purpose of choosing 72 delegates and 72 alternates to represent the democratic party of this state at the national convention to be held at Chicago on the 21st of June.

Resolved, That the chairman of this meeting appoint a committee of 14 members, of which the chairman shall be one, which shall have power to fill vacancies and add to its own number so as to constitute and be known as a provisional state committee, consisting of one member for each congressional district, according to the present apportionment of the state, to take action as may be needful to carry the purpose of these resolutions into full effect.

A CHILEAN SENSATION.

Consul McCreery Charged with Wrong Doing.

The American Representative is Charged with Using His Knowledge of State Affairs in Speculation.

New York, Feb. 23.—A special to the Herald from Valparaiso says a new scandal, implicating United States Consul McCreery has cropped out.

The story is the sensation of the hour.

Documents in the case have just been made public. They relate to the alleged transactions in exchange by Mr. McCreery.

It is asserted that the bills show there was bought and sold by him in December, 1890, and in January and February, 1891, over $1,000,000.

For the last three months, it is further alleged, he has been extensively engaged in exchange transactions. This was especially the case during the time of the Baltimore affair.

It is also alleged that he used information which he gained from official sources in his dealings.

This data, which has so astounded the business community, leaked out through a letter which was sent to Broker Mecklemann by Mr. McCreery, and in which the consul threatened local proceedings unless he was paid a certain sum of money which he claimed was due him.

Will Spoil the Broth in St. Louis.

Twenty-Two Reform Organizations Present,

Who Would Turn the World Upside Down.

Polk Made Permanent Chairman To-Day.

Everybody with an Axe to Grind is Present, and Many of Them Have Brought Along Their Grindstones.

Convention Hall, St. Louis, Feb. 23.—A feeling of unrest was apparent among the delegates to the agricultural and industrial conference, as they slowly filed into the exposition building this morning, to open the second session, and to make a stagger at getting down to real business, for which they had gathered here from nearly every state and territory in the union.

This feeling had its origin in the developments of last night regarding the efforts that are being put forth by the emissaries of Leland Stanford to induce at least a few of each organization represented to range themselves for the presidency.

This scheme was discovered just in time to prevent the efforts from becoming formidable for the boomers of the California millionaire are smooth of tongue and insinuating in demeanor, and already have begun to make an impression.

On top of this, however, came the report that the southern delegates, who in the convention yesterday were the most enthusiastic whenever a reference was made to independent political action, had, under the influences of Congressmen Livingston and Moses, of Georgia, decided to take a back track.

It is known that both the representatives in question are opposed to the third party scheme, taking the ground that the democratic party was the only hope of the south and that if agricultural and industrial organizations withdrew from the democratic party and went into a new one, they could not hope to win, and the result would only be to weaken the democratic party and make the republican negro the dominating power in both.

Livingston and others associated with the southern element gave a qualified denial to these reports, but nevertheless their circulation were sufficient to create a spirit of uneasiness.

The delegates were slow in getting together, and to make matters worse it was announced that, after pretty nearly an all-night session, the committee on credentials was unable to make its report.

This was explained by the fact that a number of delegates, representing organizations not included in the regular call, had been knocking on the door for recognition.

They included the Woman's alliance, the National Anti-Monopolists, the alliance assemblies of the Industrial Union, the Union Reform association, and the Central Nationalists, and a lot of other concerns of the existence of which none of the old delegates had ever heard before.

There seemed to be a very strong suspicion in the committee that these concerns were of a mushroom growth, and that in some of them, at least, the handiwork of the political striker, with an eye toward a possible barter and sale after the opening of the national campaign, could be discerned.

Nevertheless it was agreed to give all of the elements that sought open seesame a chance to tell all about themselves and their movements and this was such a task that when the members of the committee separated, well on toward daylight, their work was still incomplete.

To while away the moments of the opening hour or more this morning's session was given up to alliance songs in which Dixie was mixed with doggerel concerning Jerry Simpson's socks, and the woes of the Georgia and Kansas farmers.

At 10:15 the convention was formally called to order. President Cannon asked the delegates to receive the credential report in the spirit it was offered and not to precipitate a Kilkenny fight.

The report which was a unanimous one, and covered all the states except Georgia, where there is a contest, showed that nearly seven hundred delegates were present under the original call.

In addition, it was recommended to admit all the editors of the reform press, representatives of the national farmers' league of Maine, of the union reform conference, and of the industrial alliance.

The report was adopted in spite of the vociferous objections of a number of representatives of the united anti-monopoly league. This made a total of 22 organizations represented.

A wrangle of nearly an hour duration was occasioned by a resolution naming Col. L. L. Polk as permanent chairman, and which the chairman rushed through without putting the negative question. This method of doing business was not agreeable to a number of those on the floor, and with shouts and howls they claimed that the selection was irregular and that the roll of states should be called.

Finally Polk refused to take the gavel. S. F. Norton, of Chicago, forced through a resolution reconsidering the action by which he was elected. Nominations for chairman were then called for. Polk was named by half a dozen states, and Kentucky nominated Ben Terrell, of Texas.

A rising vote by organizations was called for and Polk was again elected by a nine-tenths vote.

MOSBY IN FULL CONTROL.

The Cincinnati Charter Sustained at Columbus.

The Supreme Court Has Ruled That the Republican Mayor Must be the Czar in Hamilton County.

Columbus, Feb. 23.—(Special)—The supreme court this morning allowed a motion to advance the case of Henry Wehrli, the murderer now in annex, for a hearing.

His attorneys must file a brief by April 1.

Judgment was affirmed by the supreme court in the case of the Dalzell, Gilmour & Brighton company v. the City of Findlay and others.

The case comes up on error to the circuit court of Hancock county.

The supreme court this morning sustained the constitutionality of the Cincinnati charter bill, passed last winter, so that Mosby, the republican mayor, can now appoint all the boards in that city, but they must be non-partisan of the "Coxie, Old Boy," style.

WITH A WHIRL

Went the Subscriptions to a National Union Building

At the Complimentary Entertainment at Wheeler's Last Night —The Project Now an Assured Fact.

Last evening was the date of the annual complimentary party given by the members of Lucas County Cabinet, National Union. These parties always are a social success, and the event last evening surpassed any ever given by the organization. The attendance was far beyond the capacity of the Wheeler opera house. Over 200 people were turned away, and the auditorium was packed to the doors.

A splendid program had been arranged, representing the finest musical and literary talent in the city. President C. O. Brigham conducted ceremonies in a most graceful manner. The entertainment was appropriately introduced by the singing of that well-known national anthem, "America," the audience standing.

The program was prepared by the Whiting quartette, which was a guarantee in itself of an evening of rare enjoyment to those who were so fortunate as to be present. Miss Elizabeth L. Doolittle sang two solos in a most charming manner. The quartette rendered several selections, which were received with delight. The recitations by Miss Carrie Berry Phelps were interesting, especially her rendition of "Ben Hur."

Senator L. K. Parks was the orator of the evening, and he took for his subject, "National Union Building," an ordinary but exceedingly important one to the projectors of the proposed improvement as well as the city of Toledo. Mr. Parks is a bright and entertaining talker and thorough business man as well. On this occasion he talked business, short but to the point. He covered the ground well, touching on the strength of the organization in Toledo, which is becoming stronger every year, of the credit the headquarters of such an order was to any city. He referred to the crying need of modern office room in Toledo, of the prospects of such a project as a National Union building as a remunerative one. He stated what had been done so far, with regard to plans, etc. This could not be accomplished without a manifestation of interest on the part of members. He then called for subscriptions. The business manner in which the speaker presented the situation, took the audience by storm and in a very short time pledges in the sum of $11,150 were obtained, making a total subscription of about $26,150. With this help the building will be erected, and that this summer.

TRAIN ROBBER CONFESSES

He is an Old Hand at the Business.

A Cowboy by Trade, He Holds Up Express Cars at Intervals to Get Spending Money.

Rochester, N. Y., Feb. 23.—Daniel McInerney, the express messenger who had such a thrilling experience was brought to his home in this city and surgical aid summoned.

He is under the influence of an anesthetic and the surgeon would not allow him to see strangers. His worst wound is that through the right thigh. The bullet must have been one from the largest pistol the robber carried. The wound on his forehead is slight and that in his hand was made by a fragment of a large bullet, as the piece was found in the wound. The bullet must have struck McInerney's pistol and the larger fragment missed him.

McInerney told his family that when he found himself in the power of the robber he rolled out some of the less valuable packages and covered valuable ones with them. The robber was impatient to get currency and threatened to shoot if it was not surrendered.

He said to the messenger: "You can't fool me; I've been in this business before." While the robber was waiting to get the money the train reached Lyons and the game was up. Mrs. McInerney said of her son: "He was always gritty. I knew if he was tackled he would fight it out."

J. H. Prentiss, agent of the American Express company in this city, went to Lyons last night and had an interview with the robber. Mr. Prentiss said: "He is the same man who committed the Utica robbery, Oliver Curtis Perry. He admitted the whole thing, and told where he had been. Since the Utica robbery he says he has been in Canada, down south, and in the west."

"He said he wrote that letter from Canada and put a United States postage stamp on it, but was told it would not go with that stamp and he then put on a Canadian stamp. But he did not go in the direction indicated in the letter. He says he always went under his own name and was indignant at the statement that he took any other."

"He told me he knew when they were after him in any place, and avoided arrest by changing his voice and putting on gold spectacles.

"Perry is one of the brightest and coolest fellows I ever saw. He has been a cowboy and we know that he has been in the state prison in this and other states, although he did not tell us so. He told me that his health is failing, and that he knew he would go to prison for this and never come out alive. He said that he weighed 150 pounds in September, and weighs only 130 now.

"He had 16 cartridges when he surrendered, and three revolvers, one large and two small. The larger one had a bore you could put your finger down. He said: 'McInerney was a good man, but indiscreet. He ought to have thrown up his hands. I did not want to kill him, but only wing him. He did not get a cent. There was nothing in the car for him to steal. I asked him how he got on the train, and he replied that he was in the depot at Syracuse when they were loading it, but got on in the freight yard while the train was running fast.'"

FINE STREETS A LUXURY.

Assessment Fails to Reimburse the Expenditure.

Solicitor Read Talks on the Subject and Refers to the Many Pending Injunction Suits.

"The ordinary taxpayer, who pays his street improvement assessment is certain that the abutting property pays for the improvement with a snug margin for the city," remarked City Solicitor Read to a Bee this morning.

"Well, it don't, and the margin is on the other side of the page, I assure you. I have been looking up the pending injunction suits against the city restricting the collection of assessments for street improvements in excess of 25 per cent. of the value of the property, and I find that there are 30 suits which will come up in the immediate future.

"There is over $75,000 in taxes tied up in these suits, and there are as many again that will be at issue later on. There are only two or three cases of the 30 that I will win, for the reason that in a majority of the cases the assessment is in excess of 25 per cent. of the value of the property, and the court will so decide. There is no one to blame that I can see. It is inevitable in improving streets. If any one is to blame it is the man who plats the property, in not preventing triangular lots to abut the streets, thereby giving a big street frontage to a small lot. Then there are other reasons. Some lots are all cut up by a gully, others have been cut in two by a street, leaving a small strip to a large amount of frontage. Here is one lot 9 feet by 106 feet, assessed at $600. Well, the court will fix the value of the property and it can only be assessed for 25 per cent. of that amount. That is considerable less than the original assessment, and the result is the city has to pay the difference. Then there is the intersections which the city has to pay. We will take Bancroft street for instance. The abatement on corner lots alone, even if the city can sustain the highest figures set forth, the amount will be nearly $7,000 in excess of what the property will stand. From what I have figured, the improvement of Bancroft street alone will cost the city over and above the assessment, $25,000. So you can see that fine streets are somewhat of a luxury."

Wheat Quotations for the Day—Prices Current for Produce and Other Articles.

London wheat market steadier; corn firm. Weather colder. Liverpool wheat demand weak. Prices lower than Saturday. Corn fair demand and higher.

The receipts of wheat at seven principal western points to-day are 1,068,121 bu, compared with 426,378 bu on the same day last year.

Bradstreet's says: Stocks of available wheat in the United States and Canada east of the Rocky mountains on February 13 aggregated 64,849,363 bu, a falling off of 1,747,832 bu within a week, in contrast with an increase of 63,637 bushels of wheat over a like territory in the preceding week, and as compared with a decrease of only 58,420 bushels in the second week of February, 1891. On the other side of the Rocky mountains the decrease of available stocks of wheat last week amounted to 514,347 bu; one week previous the falling off was 892,284 bu, and in the second week of February, 1891, it was 1,075,000 bu. Including both coasts, the total net falling off was 892,284 bu, and in the second week of February, 1891, it was 1,075,000 bu. Including both coasts the total net falling off in available wheat stocks last week was 2,262,189 bu, as compared with a decrease of 1,133,420 bu in the like week a year ago, about twice as much.

Exports of wheat from United States ports for the week ending February 17 equal 4,042,000 bushels, against 3,641,000 bushels the week before, 2,086,000 in the week a year ago, and 2, 236,000 bushels in a similar period two years ago. Indian corn exports for this week continue phenomenally heavy, 3,243,000 bushels, as compared with 2,927,000 bushels a week ago, and as contrasted with only 327,000 bushels in the like week a year ago.

The steamer Brittanic has been chartered at Chicago to load 61,000 bu wheat here for Buffalo at 3 3-4c.

Reported that 680,000 bu wheat and 376,000 bu corn were taken at New York and outports Friday for export.

Rumored that the Toledo, Ann Arbor & North Michigan railroad has decided to build four steel barges to transport the company's cars from Manistee and Frankfort, on the east side of Lake Michigan, to Wewaunee on the west side. The new barges will cost about $300,000.

Business failures in the United States and Canada for the week were 229, against 276 for the previous week, and 290 for the corresponding week last year.

A syndicate composed of New York and Iowa capitalists have just purchased 20,000 acres of land in Chippewa county, Michigan, which they intend to develop into a monster farm.

The Wheat Crop Outlook.—In the portion of Ohio through which we have traveled the wheat crop came out from under the snow looking green and healthy of small growth. In the past week or ten days a change has appeared. One-third of most of the fields has turned brown. It is not confined to low wet lands, where freezing and thawing would be likely to sever the roots, but upon uplands this feature is quite as pronounced. Of course we were unable to discern the cause or its probable effects, and therefore have no opinion to offer. A week or two of suitable weather will determine whether it is serious or not. We have seen a good crop produced where all the tops had turned brown.

In Pennsylvania and Maryland within our observation, the crop is of limited growth, but looks healthy. It is well to repeat what we have before stated, that the crop everywhere is weak and cannot stand much grief.

The receipts of wheat at seven principal western points since Saturday are very large, aggregating 1,068,121 bus.

The export clearances since Saturday from four Atlantic ports are light in wheat, say 235,902 and flour to an aggregate of 350,000 bus. The export of corn was 923,571 bus and of oats 41,052 bus.

English markets as reported herein are lower and dull and at Liverpool, and steady at decline in London for wheat. Corn firm.

The Markets To-Day.

Reports to Chicago authorities are said to make the world's shipments last week 5,960,000 bus. Previous week, 6,140,000 bus. The requirements of Europe are placed at 7,680,000 bus per week.

The wheat markets in this country are lower. Of course the markets abroad have a controlling influence of more than ordinary significance just now, with our increasing receipts and lighter exports. These conditions are supplemented with an increase in the quantity on ocean passage of 1,056,000 bu, and the other side of the question is represented a decrease in the visible supply of 322,000 bu.

The markets have been lower all day, and especially in New York.

Corn is also cheaper in New York and about steady. A very interesting feature in the corn market is, that the quantity on passage to Europe now exceeds the quantity to England by 1,700,000 bu. Last year and previously it was greatly less. It shows a resort to other food cereals.

In New York February wheat closed 2 1-8c and May 1 3-4c lower. February and May corn 3-8c lower. February oats unchanged.

In Chicago May wheat closed 1 1-4 lower. Corn unchanged.

In Toledo the market for wheat futures was measured within a small compass, and without special features of any note. Prices have been lower and weak all day. May opened at 97 7-8 and closed at 97 1-8, a loss of 1 1-2. On the call May sold at 97 3-4 and closed at 97 7-8.

After the call May sold at 97 7-8 and slowly declined to the close. July sold on the call at 93 1-8 to 93 1-4 and closed at 92 5-8c.

Cash wheat was in demand, with moderate sales. No. 2 soft sold at 96 1-2 to 95 3-4c, and closed at 96c, a loss of 1 1-2c; No. 3 soft at 94c.

Corn—No. 2 at 40 1-2c; No. 3 at 39 1-2c; No. 2 yellow at 41c; No. 3 at 87c.

The visible supply of wheat was decreased last week 322,000 bu. Corn increased 202,000 bu. Oats decreased 133,000 bu.

Jersey Central and Reading were also freely sold and declined 1 per cent. each. Burlington also dropped a similar amount. Atchison and Lake Erie & Western were also very weak. Toward the end of the hour the downward movement was checked and there was a sharp rally. Chicago Gas recovered 1 per cent. At 11 o'clock the market was dull and featureless.

WILL IGNORE THE LAW.

Michigan Republicans Take a Rash Step.

They Decide Not to Obey the Law of the State in Selecting Presidential Electors.

Detroit, Feb. 23.—The republican state committee has decided to ignore the Miner electoral law in the choice of presidential electors this year, the Miner law being the plan providing for the choice of electors by districts instead of on a state ticket, as heretofore.

Their convention will choose delegates to be voted for at large, and it is hoped by this plan to make a test of the law's constitutionality.

Senator Morrill Wants a Record and Pension Division.

Washington, Feb. 23.—Senator Morrill to-day introduced a bill creating the record and pension division of the war department for the preservation and custody of the records of the volunteer armies.

The president is authorized to select an officer of the army for chief of the division, who is to have the rank, pay and all allowances of a colonel.

This bill is a modification of a measure passed by the last congress and vetoed by President Harrison, on the ground that it was in the interest of one man, Major Ainsworth, an army surgeon who had been acting as chief of the temporary division of records and pensions, established by the secretary of war, and left the executive no discretionary power in making appointments.

New York, Feb. 23.—U. S. Judge Addison Brown this morning signed the order in mandate in the United States supreme court sentencing James A Simmons to six years imprisonment in the Erie county penitentiary.

SMEAD SYSTEM IN COLUMBUS.

We have received a copy of the annual report of the public schools of Columbus, O., for 1891, from which we make the following gratifying quotation regarding a Toledo institution:

"The Smead system of warming and ventilating is now used in 15 buildings, and it has given such uniform satisfaction by reason of its economical consumption of fuel and the pure atmosphere it furnishes to the school rooms, that it has been adopted for the buildings to be erected next year. The use of the dry closet system which does away with the dangerous cesspools that have long menaced the health of the children, is another step in the right direction."

EX-PRESIDENT CLEVELAND

Pays Toledo a Brief Flying Visit.

He is Entertained at the Residence of His Sister and Then Leaves for Detroit.

Ex-President Cleveland arrived in the city over the Michigan Central from Detroit in President Ledyard's private car this afternoon and was at once driven to the residence of his sister, Mrs. N. B. Bacon, on Superior street.

Owing to the conflicting reports from Detroit relative to Mr. Cleveland's coming there were but few at the Union depot when the train arrived.

The train was 20 minutes late in getting here, and the two hours the honored guest was to remain at the Bacon residence was curtailed to about an hour. The train left half an hour ahead of time, and many arrived at the residence on Superior street to pay their respects to find that Mr. Cleveland had gone.

Among others who called and shook hands with the ex-president were Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Schenck, W. J. Colburn, Captain P. H. Dowling, L. G. Richardson, ex-Senator McLyman, Mr and Mrs. Whitlock, and Mr. J. V. San Fleet.

Among those who reached the house too late were Postmaster Brown, Collector Waldorf and Judge Austin.

Ex-Gov. Campbell, who came with Mr. Cleveland, stopped and dined at the Boody, and received quite a number of callers during his short stay in the city.

The same confusion of reports regarding the hour of leaving Toledo was the cause of no little interest at the Union depot when the train pulled out.

"It is too bad you cannot remain with us a little longer," a Bee said to him upon being introduced.

"I wouldv like to remain much longer," he repied, "but duty before pleasure, you know. I have urgent private business in New York which requires my presence."

"You have not had time to see much of Toledo?" the Bee suggested

"No, but what I have seen of your city I like very much."

The big man had been standing on the rear platform of the train during the brief conversation, and seemed to be in excellent health and spirits.

He waved his hand in farewell as the train pulled out and re-entered the car.

Geo. E. Lorenz and others who proposed going over to Detroit with the party arrived just in time to miss the train.

Gov. Campbell returned to Detroit with Mr. Cleveland.

To a Bee Mr. Campbell said he was just now attending strictly to business, and would leave politics for future consideration. He is looking hale and hearty.

In the party which came with Mr. Cleveland were ex-Postmaster General Don M. Dickinson, Mr. Quinby, of the Free Press, Claude Meeker, and Mr. Shay, in charge of the Canadian Pacific railway at Detroit.

CUT TO PIECES AND BURNED.

A Peddler Suffers That Fate at the Hands of a Drunken Party.

Toronto, Feb. 23.—The chief of police of this city has just received information of a very sensational murder.

It appears that a few nights ago a peddler took lodging at a hotel at Loretto, a small village in Alaja county, a district populated almost exclusively by Roman Catholics.

He found a party of villagers in a jolly mood, drinking and smoking round the barroom fire. They demanded a song from the peddler, who hesitated to comply, saying he knew nothing but Orange songs.

The crowd, however, insisted, and the peddler complied, but the sentiment of the songs so exasperated the crowd that they set upon and beat the man to death. Suddenly sobered by their murderous deed they shut up the house and spent the rest of the night in cutting up the body and burning it in the stove.

HAD NO FLAG,

Consequently the Stars and Stripes Did Not Float.

"The reason our flag didn't float over the Federal building yesterday," said the custodian this morning, "was because we have no flag. It has been reduced by the elements to such a state that we considered it a disrespect to the memory of Washington to hoist it. Our new flag has not arrived, but we expect it any day."

A SAD CASE.

The Humane Society Will Take It in Hand.

A bright colored girl, who does family washing at Hotel Ontario, told a sad story to her employer yesterday, which was at once reported to the Humane society. The girl is the eldest of a family of seven children, and just now the only one earning anything for their support. Two days last week the invalid mother and her flock of little ones were utterly destitute of food, the slender wages of the girl having been all expended. The father (Patrick Hawkins by name, residence on Beach street), is disporting himself in another part of the city, enjoying the society of a white belle from Smoky Hollow. He is a United States pensioner and should speedily be made to support his family.

RAILROAD COMMISSIONERSHIP.

A Report that Routson is to Secure the Plum.

Last evening's Massillonian has the following paragraph of interest to Toledo since Mr. Wm. Kirkby is being pressed for the position named:

"A gentleman who was in Columbus Saturday, and who is in a position to know what is going on within the inner circle of republicanism at the capital, gave a coming appointment of the commissioner of railroads and telegraphs. He said that the indications are that the choice plum will be plucked by W. A. Routson, of Wooster, the contest for the place having grown so bitter between the two candidates backed, respectively, by the Brotherhood of Railway Conductors and Engineers that it will be necessary for the governor, in the interest of harmony, to drop them both, and that Routson stands next in favor among the candidates."

This may or may not be true. The backers of Mr. Kirkby have kept him out of the "bitter fight" mentioned, and consequently he is regarded, in Toledo at least, as the most likely person to receive the appointment. The story will be told in a few days, however.

FATHER BURNS

Made a Good Impression at Columbus Last Night.

As stated in the Bee a few days since, Father Burns delivered his lecture at Columbus last evening. This morning's Journal has the following complimentary introduction to a synopsis of his discourse:

"The board of trade auditorium was well filled last evening with a distinguished and cultivated audience to hear the lecture by Rev. William J. Burns, of London, England, upon Cardinal Manning. Bishop Watterson and a number of the local clergy occupied seats upon the stage. Judge George K. Nash presented the speaker in a short an complimentary reference to the distinguished lecturer and his illustrious subject. Rev. Mr. Burns is a man of commanding presence—a fluent, forcible and pleasant talker. He possesses to a rare degree the peculiar tact of carrying his audience with him and presenting his subjects in such a manner as to cause his auditors to lose sight of all else in their eagerness to follow the thread of the discourse. So grand a subject in such competent hands could not fail to be a theme of a literary gem, and such it was."

THE ORPHAN'S HOME.

Charity Concert at Mrs. Shoemaker's a Grand Success.

Last evening occurred the charity concert at the residence of Mrs. F. B. Shoemaker, for the benefit of the Protestant Orphans' home. The musical part of the work was under the direction of Elvin Singer. It was an artistic and social success.

The first number was a quartet from the Bohemian Girl, by Miss Mary Chase, Miss Hattie Gasser, Mr. Singer and C. E. Wuerfel. It was rendered in an excellent manner.

Miss May Barden Colburn delighted her hearers with her finished work on the violin. Miss Grace Reals sang the bud song from Robin Hood, "Let Me Love Thee," "Dearest Mother," during the evening.

Miss Nellie Cook gave several charming selections on the piano, Mr. Singer sang a number of solos in his usual good style, and the concert closed with a quartet by Mrs. F. R. Williams, Miss Reals, Mr. F. R. Williams and Mr. Singer, from Rigolitto.

The concert was a success in every way, and reflects much credit on the ladies interested, Mr. Singer and his able assistants. A neat sum was realized.

STRUCK BY A TRAIN.

People Who Could Not Get Off the Train.

A Fast Passenger Runs Over a Party of Young Folks Under Peculiar Circumstances.

Pittsburg, Pa., Feb. 23.—A party of young people who had been attending a dance at Braddock were run down by a train on the Pennsylvania railroad early this morning.

One was killed and two others fatally injured. The party had missed the last train and were walking home. At Hawkins station the train suddenly appeared around the curve and ran them down before they could step from the track.

Alice Gaskill was instantly killed; Wm. Dewar, aged 22, sustained injuries from which he died a few hours later and Milton Sigler was so badly injured that the physicians have no hopes of his recovery.

LORDS AND HEAVY SWELLS

Flocked to the Bow Street Police Court

This Morning to Hear What Was Sensational in the Trial of Tutor Morland.

London, Feb. 23.—Maitland Francis Morland, the law tutor of Oxford, who was arrested on February 13, owing to revelations made by Mr. Henry Labouchere in Truth, charged with blackmailing a number of wealthy and titled undergraduates of Oxford university, was brought up on remand this morning at the Bow street police court. The court room was crowded with young lords and other heavy swells.

The earl of Chesterfield, Lord Ormathwaite, Lord Lindsay, Earl Carnaryon and Earl Aylesford, testified that they had received letters similar to the one received by Lord Bothfield, which led to the exposure of the blackmailing scheme.

Evidence was also produced that a certain "Ruth Morland" had sued Earl Russell for £100, money said partly to have been loaned and partly to have been promised as the price of suppressing certain letters.

Rev. Dr. Briggs, junior proctor of Oxford, testified that Morland had told him the writer of the letters was a woman nihilist, who was so devoted to nihilism that she might perhaps sacrifice her honor to gain titled adherents to the cause.

Evidence was offered that Morland had in 1874 been sentenced to a year's imprisonment for perjury. He was again

SUSPICIOUS CHINAMEN.

A Pair Arrested in This City Last Night.

It Is Thought That They Have Been Smuggled Into the Country.

Two suspicious Chinamen were arrested about 11:30 last evening by Lake Shore Detective Gillespie at the Union depot, and to-day they will be obliged to give an account of themselves or get out of the country.

The Chinamen boarded the southbound train at Wyandot, Michigan, last evening. At the station Conductor Ryan noticed a stranger hand each of the Celestials a ticket, and when they got on the train the men separated and went into different cars, though it was evident that they were traveling together. The Chinamen paid their fare to Toledo, but when they arrived here Conductor Ryan informed Detective Gillespie of their strange actions and they were arrested.

At the station tickets to Cincinnati were found on them and one had $19.50 and the other $16.35.

Only one of them could speak English, and he vigorously protested that they were all right, but the pair were locked up, notwithstanding.

This morning Immigrant Inspector T. C. Ryan was notified of the case, and upon going to the police station he endeavored to extract some information from the prisoners. The Chinaman who could speak English said that his name was Chong Max, and claimed that he had been in the United States about eight years. His account of the other man, however, was very unsatisfactory and he could not explain where he came from or what they were going to do, except that he wanted to buy a laundry.

From appearances it is thought that Chong is an agent engaged in smuggling Chinamen into the country and that the other man is a new arrival, that he was piloting into the states. Both of the men were well dressed in American clothes and had their cues snugly tucked away under Derby hats.

The pair were taken before United States Commissioner Hall this afternoon, and he will look into the case.

It has long been suspected by government officials that Toledo is a distributing point for contraband Chinese who are smuggled across the border at Detroit or other places in Michigan, sent to Toledo and from here sent to their destination in the east or south. On several occasions suspicious parties of Chinamen have been noticed in the city, but they have always eluded the officers and made their escape.

LABOR LEADERS ARRESTED.

They Are Not Allowed to Present Their Cases in Vienna.

Vienna, Feb. 23.—The police have arrested Hanzer, an editor of labor publications, and 12 associates, on the charge of inciting a labor demonstration of the unemployed, at Hernals, a suburb of Vienna.

The crowd assembled in the suburb to the number of 5,000 and the leaders insisted on an interview with the burgo-master, which was refused.

They also threatened to make a demonstration similar to that of the unemployed in London some time ago.

OVERWHELMING EVIDENCE!

Of the Success of Dr. Copeland and Associates at 706 Madison Street.

Statements that are Candid, Straightforward and Convincing, and From Persons Whose Evidence Is Beyond Dispute.

It is rarely that the specialist, whose observation covers a wide range of throat and lung troubles and whose experience brings him in contact with many of the serious and desperate cases resulting from neglected catarrh, sees a more pronounced case and one more typical of what head and throat trouble, if neglected or not properly treated, may develop into, than the case of Mr. Ancil G. Rice, of 219 Dix street. As near as possible we give his own words:

"My trouble has all been due to chronic catarrh," says Mr. Rice, "and it was not neglected, either, for I

Have Doctored for Years, but been improperly treated. I had occasional violent headaches. My eyes were weak and watery and my nose was continually stopped up. I was forced to breathe through my mouth.

Ancil G. Rice, 219 Dix Street.

"My throat was always filling up with the dropping of the mucus from the head. I was hawking and spitting all the time. My throat was at times very sore and raw. My rest was poor at night and I was really unfit for business in the morning.

"As I said, I tried many prominent physicians, but experienced very little relief. I had heard and read of the success of Dr. Copeland and associates, and concluded to give them a trial. I did so with the result that my pains, aches and other troubles are all gone. The change in my condition is such that I unhesitatingly recommend Dr. Copeland and associates to all who suffer as I did."

NASAL POLYPI.

This Annoying and Painful Disease Described by a Victim.

(Nasal polypi are tumors that grow in the nasal cavities. They obstruct the passage of air through the nose, swell up in damp weather, or decrease somewhat in fair weather. They give rise to frontal headaches, fits of sneezing, coughing, asthma, facial neuralgia, pains in the neck and chest, and impair or destroy the senses of smell, taste or hearing. The breath often has a peculiar "mousy" odor, the margins of the nostrils become raw and excoriated, the eyes are watery and the voice has a nasal twang.)

"I had been troubled for a number of years," said Mr. George Hoffman, of 107 Empire street. "My head and nose was completely stopped up and I had to breathe through my mouth. This was due, in a measure, to the accumulation of mucus, but more especially to a number of polypi tumors which filled both nostrils. I had treated with a number of physicians but none of them discovered the tumors. Some time ago I called on Dr. Copeland and associates, and placed myself under their treatment. They immediately removed seven polypi tumors and I was able to breathe through my nostrils, something I had not done in years. They then treated my catarrh, and I am happy to say I am feeling better to-day than I have for years. The removal of the tumors was without the slightest pain or loss of blood. I cannot recommend Dr. Copeland and associates too highly."

FROM OUT OF TOWN.

Results in a Case Treated by Mail.

Portage, O., Feb. 9, 1892.

Copeland Medical Institute, Toledo, O.:

Gentlemen:—Since taking your treatment for catarrh, I am very much better. My general health is much improved, my sense of smell has returned. My case was a chronic one and will require time. I am greatly encouraged and anticipate a complete cure. Refer anyone to me.

Yours respectfully,

N. C. BESANSON.

ANOTHER INSTANCE.

A Prominent Real Estate Agent Tells of the Removal of Twenty Polypi Tumors.

Among the many prominent real estate agents in Toledo, none are more popular or more favorably known than Mr. J. J. Sumner, whose offices are at the corner of Superior and Madison streets, and who lives at 721 Prouty avenue. Mr. Sumner tells of his experience with Dr. Copeland and associates as follows:

"I had catarrh for a long time. My nose stopped up so that I could breathe only with great difficulty. In damp weather I could not breathe at all. I suffered from terrible, racking headaches. I often thought my head would burst with the throbbing and the pain. There was the constant flow of mucus from my nose, and my eyes became sore and watery. I did not sleep well, and I found that I was losing my sense of smell. I was most distressed, however, about my voice, which changed in tone until it sounded as if I pinched my nose with my fingers while talking.

"I was quite in despair, when after reading the testimonials of the patients of Dr. Copeland and associates I determined to make a trial of their treatment. I accordingly went to the Copeland Medical Institute, and it was only a short time until I began to breathe through my nose, until the headaches disappeared and until the polypus growths were removed. I can now hear the natural voice that has returned to me, much to my comfort and delight. I sleep well and I feel well. I have only one fear, and that is that the polypi may return, so I have concluded to continue the treatment for another month, at the end of which time I shall be forever rid, I hope, of the complaint that for four years made life a burden to me. I am glad to add my small tribute of praise to the splendid work of these physicians."

Telephones, Editorial 353; Counting Room 102

TOLEDO, OHIO, FEBRUARY 23, 1892.

It was a very short stay, but Toledo was honored by a visit from that distinguished citizen, Grover Cleveland, to-day.

The Sherman-Foraker factional fight, the Cleveland-Hill scramble, the Quay and Anti-Quay struggle, the Harrison and AntiHarrison rumpus—all these things make politics interesting.

Paste another in your Blaine letter-scrapbook. He sent one to the Michigan club banquet, in which it was said "On all the leading industrial and financial measures before the country, we are united." Oh, yes, we are.

What with the Ann Arbor celebration, the junket of congressmen in Chicago, the Albany convention, the Detroit banquet and the aggregation in St. Louis, the birthday of the Father of His Country was pretty well observed in this section of country.

So far as the state convention of his party can make it, David B. Hill is a candidate for the democratic nomination for president. What he personally intends doing is somewhat mysterious, but it is certain that he will control 76 votes in the convention, which will be cast as he may direct.

The two New York candidates for president, Cleveland and Hill, made notable speeches yesterday, the former in Ann Arbor, Michigan, and the latter in Albany, New York. Mr. Cleveland's address was full of practical advice to two thousand students. Mr. Hill's remarks were directed to the practical side of politics.

The government is considering the advisability of issuing two per cent. bonds, or in other words, borrowing money to complete the construction of highways in the District of Columbia. When this administration came into power there was a surplus of $100,000,000 in the treasury. Is further condemnation of republican methods needed, than this bare statement of fact?

The natural gas question is now so thoroughly understood in Toledo that all citizens must admit the failing supply—facts which the Bee long since pointed out and established by unmistakable proof. Now, what shall be done? This is the livest of all questions for citizens to discuss, but the discussion should be open and frank. A man who has an opinion should not masquerade behind an anonymous signature. This is not the time for "Libertas" and "Veritas" and "Citizen" and "Tax Payer" and "Manufacturer" and "Consumer" to throw theoretical bombs from a masked battery. Sign your proper names and discuss the situation intelligently. Mr. W. H. Maher sets a good example for everybody to follow. The Bee offers its columns to the public for discussion pro and con, but no anonymous communication on the gas subject will hereafter be printed in the Bee. Face the music like men and let the people know who you are and what you have to say.

Gov. McKinley said at the Michigan club banquet, "you can't have free wool from the sheep's back and tariffed wool when it comes to your own backs." What does Gov. McKinley mean? There can be but one conclusion—that "tariffed" stands for "taxed," in contradistinction to the "free" in the first part of the sentence. What is the matter with "tariffed" wool, if the tariff (according to the McKinley doctrine) makes the coat cheaper? He talks about free sugar; a bonus from the treasury is paid on every pound manufactured and the refiners are quieted by a tariff clause for their benefit. You notice in th ereport of his address how he dropped the subject of protection for pearl button manufactures. He made one line about it and switched off into generalization again. He was uncomfortably near the pearl button factory, whose owners and managers are under arrest for employing the foreign pauper labor the governor was keeping out theoretically with his tax measure. (And the paupers imported in defiance of the contract labor law, struck for the pay promised them and so gave away their employers). The Governor didn't dally with particulars. He is the greatest orator on the continent for slinging the proverbial glittering generalities, and casting his rounded periods right into the teeth of the commonest facts. In an address in defense of his crazy law, he is the most illogical, unreliable, poorly-informed, reckless shouter that ever mounted a stump. He pays no attention whatever to proven truths or unexpected evolvements. He turns the old hash over in the bowl and whacks away with the same old knife in the same old fashion. A scrap book of his efforts needs to contain but one speech and it matters not which one.

WEST VIRGINIA'S VOTE.

For a number of years the machine politicians of the republican party have invaded the sacred soil of West Virginia to capture its electoral vote. Elkins tried to despoil the state in 1884 and Quay, Wanamaker & Co. attempted to boodleize it in 1888. In the election estimates of those years the republicans claimed West Virginia with confidence. Democrats of other states were not seriously disturbed by the boasts of the enemy, for they had confidence in their brethren in the new state; still, when a Dorsey and a Dudley could twice steal a state so rock-ribbed as Indiana, it was not difficult to understand that the republicans would not scruple at undertaking any political crime.

West Virginia democrats made gallant campaigns in 1884 and 1888 and won the applause of the national democracy. Again, in 1892 the hand of the enemy is early felt. The Harrisonian machine is after West Virginia's electoral vote, and it is announced that Elkins may be the candidate for governor. That means tha he proposes to have plenty of the Foster fat-frying money with which to debauch the state. The brethren in West Virginia most early appreciate the situation. Another mighty struggle is before them, but again they will be victorious. Their democracy is of the sterling character which the Quay machine can not reach. In the contest before them they have the hearty sympathy of the democracy of other states to cheer them. Fight well for the old party, and help elect another democratic president.

Small Chance.

With a fair chance for fusion in Minnesota between democrats and alliance people the chances of the G. O. P. in that state are not promising, to say the least.—

MENTIONED ON THE STREETS.

That the social season is about drawing to a close.

That Toledo has shown considerable interest in the chess contest now on.

That a new lodge of the Knights of Pythias will soon be formed at Maumee.

That the democrats who went to Ann Arbor returned hurrahing for Cleveland.

That Held by the Enemy will follow the Fairies' Well at the People's next week.

That the Battery boys have their fifth annual party at Memorial hall Thursday evening.

That the street contractor will soon begin to tear up the thoroughfares to improve them.

That things have quieted down at the government building since the elevator scrimmage.

That Mr. Zirwas will again be returned to the board of education from the Fourth ward by acclamation, as has been the case for years.

That Dick Kerlin is passing his last day as a single man, as his marriage occurs to-morrow.

That Secretary Crane is already at work making arrangements for the coming Tri-State fair.

That the building and loan associations are clearing the decks for a busy season as soon as it opens.

That world's fair exhibits are already being put in shape by Toledo manufacturing establishments.

That steps are being taken to have St. Patrick's Day celebrated in Toledo on a grander scale than ever.

That now the republican caucuses have been called, the campaign will open up in earnest, and the fur will fly.

That the twelfth anniversary of Castle Oliver, K. G. R., will be appropriately observed at Grand Army hall this evening.

That the present city council is on the home stretch, and will not consider much legislation that can be laid over for their successors.

That the Democratic club of the First ward will take the preliminary steps to push the campaign at their meeting on Thursday night.

That Col. John H. Puck is being considered as a suitable candidate for the police commissionership on the democratic ticket this spring.

That there does not seem to be any great need for five trustees on the gas board, as four have done very well since Mr. Brown retired.

That the street commissioner's force desecrated Washington's birthday yesterday endeavoring to discover the Summit street pavement. As the cause was a noble one, the men are to be excused.

Balfour's Reform.

Not even Ulster can stand the Balfour scheme of revolutionary reform in Ireland. The members of that ultra-loyal province have united in asking for a reduction of the power which the government measure would confer upon the imperial judiciary in matters naturally purely administrative. "Gimx's Baby" was never designed to survive. What does Lord Salisbury intend to substitute for it?—New York Recorder.

Only a Bluff.

What nonsense the railroad people are taking about going around Chicago and abandoning all their stations within the city limits if they are forced to separate the grade crossings. The Chicago people will size it up for what it is, a grand bluff to moderate or entirely stop the demand for the abolition of the death traps. —Rochester Herald.

Very Patriotic.

New York has just passed its semi-annual resolution that the Grant monument must be completed before the opening of the world's fair. While these resolutions are not supposed to be a guarantee of energetic awakening, they are accepted as a very calm, proper and dignified expression of the patriotic sentiment of the committee.—Kansas City Star.

Not So Bad After All

It is reported that Edison is liable to be frozen out of the new electric consolidation because he only owns one-tenth of the $100,000,000 stock of the General Electric company. This appears to be a case in which sympathy may be moderately mingled with congratulation. Edison was a poor man a few years ago.—St. Louis Republic.

Must Be United.

The tariff is an issue between the two great parties; free silver is an issue between divisions of each of the parties. Since unity is essential to success, it follows that tariff reform is the issue on which democracy must make its fight. And Grover Cleveland is the foremost champion of that principle.—Atlanta Journal.

Fear the American Bucket Shop.

Mr. Abbott should make attempt to amend his bucket shop law so as to make it effective against agents or pseudo agents of American bucket shop keepers. These so-called "agents," who are simply impudent imposters, are becoming numerous and are doing much harm.—Montreal Witness.

HARRISON DELEGATES CHOSEN.

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 23.—The republican primaries for the selection of delegates to the district and state conventions, which choose delegates to the Minneapolis convention, held throughout the state everywhere, resulted in the choice of Harrison men as delegates. In but two counties was there even the semblance of opposition to the administration, and in each of these it was very feeble.

RHODE ISLAND PROHIBS.

Providence, R. I., Feb. 23.—The state prohibition convention was held here, with a large attendance. George P. Slade was chairman. The usual prohibition resolutions were adopted. Alexander Gilbert, of Woonsocket, was nominated for governor. A proposed woman suffrage plank failed of adoption.

ENTHUSIASM FOR CLEVELAND.

Providence, R. I., Feb. 23.—When a letter of regret from ex-President Cleveland was read at the banquet of the Young Men's Democratic club at Music hall, an uproar of applause followed. Men rose to their feet, waved their handkerchiefs and gave three cheers and three more for the baby. The enthusiasm was continued unabated for three minutes.

FOSTORIA NOTES.

Fostoria, O., Feb. 23.—(Special)—A. Mennell will leave soon for a trip to Cuba in the interest of the Harter Milling company.

DISCRIMINATION.

Mr. Backus Springs a Little Surprise on the Trustees.

Singular Facts and Figures Relative to Gas

For Lighting—Manager Heston Reports Some Good Wells Just In—The Board Will Send a Delegate to Pittsburg with the Mayor's Committee.

It was an hour after the schedule time of meeting when the natural gas trustees got down to business last evening. Messrs. Parsons and Backus were just about adjourning when Dr. Jones and Gen. Greene came in.

Mr. Backus had a surprise in store and he waited until the last minute to spring it. When the reports of committees, manager, etc., had been gotten through with, Mr. Backus, unrolling a package of manuscript, said he was in search of information. He said he would like to make some inquiries relative to the use of natural gas for illuminating purposes. He would like to know if all kinds of burners were allowed to be used.

President Parsons said he could not tell. No one else seemed to know.

Mr. Backus then read the board's rules for the use of natural gas for illuminating purposes. He said he had the names of all parties using gas for lighting. He then read the following explanatory document:

Natural Gas at Tip Rate as Compared with Meter and Mixer Rate.

Concerning the consumption of natural gas for illuminating purposes the following facts are noted:

The "Newmarket" burner has a capacity of 25 feet per hour.

The "Niagara" burner has a capacity of 24 feet per hour.

The "Argand" burner has a capacity of 20 feet per hour.

The "Jumbo" burner has a capacity of 20 feet per hour.

The "Sunflower" burner has a capacity of 33 feet per hour.

The "Clough" burner has a capacity of 18 feet per hour.

As there are many of the Niagara, Argand and Jumbo burners in use in Toledo, the following comparison is made of their consumption:

The "Niagara," six hours per day, equal 150 feet per day, or 4,500 feet per month.

The "Argand," six hours per day, equal 120 feet per day, or 3,600 feet per month.

The "Jumbo," six hours per day, equal 120 feet per day, or 3,600 feet per month.

At 8 cents per 1,000 cubic feet (the net city rate), the cost would be for the "Niagara," 36 cents per month; "Argand," 29 cents per month; "Jumbo," 29 cents per month; whereas the consumer now pays as follows: "Niagara," 3 cents per month, or 2-3 of a cent per 1,000 cubic feet; "Argand," 3 cents per month, or 8-10 of a cent per 1,000 cubic feet; "Jumbo," 3 cents per month, or 8-10 of a cent per 1,000 cubic feet.

As many consumers, recognizing the saving to them in the "tip-rate" over the "mixer-rate, use the gas through the tips for the purpose of heating, a comparison is here made between these several burners and a No. 3 mixer:

A No. 3 mixer has a capacity of about 32 cubic feet per hour.

A "Niagara" burner has a capacity of about 24 cubic feet per hour.

An "Argand" burner has a capacity of about 20 cubic feet per hour.

A "Jumbo" burner has a capacity of about 20 cubic feet per hour.

By the above showing, the number three mixer, charged at $1.15 (net) per month, the "Niagara" should pay in the same proportion, 85 cents per month; the "Argand" and "Jumbo," in the same proportion, 73 cents per month. Whereas, they pay but 3 cents.

Thus, the "poor man's cook stove," concerning which there was so much solicitude expressed, is most thoroughly discriminated against. He is generously permitted to pay 8 cents per 1,000 cubic feet, while his more favored brother must pay 2-3 to 5-8 of a cent per 1,000 cubic feet.

As there are a large number of these tips in use at this 3 cent a month rate, perhaps 1,000 of them (many used which are not reported, nor charged,) the large quantity of gas thus practically given away to these favored consumers, if sold to those who desire to use it at meter or mixer rates, but cannot get it, owing to the insufficiency, would add at least $500 per month to the receipts of the city line.

But the most important feature of the case is the injustice in requiring many to pay 8 cents per 1,000 cubic feet, while others, who can best afford to pay the regular price, are charged less than 1 cent per 1,000 cubic feet.

Continuing Mr. Backus said the city was being basely defrauded in this matter. For instance the owner of a Madison street flat reports 20 tips when to his (Backus') personal knowledge 120 tips were being used in the premises. "That is not all," he said, "there are hundreds using the gas for illuminating purposes free."

President Parsons—"Name one."

Mr. Backus—"Well, here is Maggie Conley, Broadway, uses 9 jumbo burners. Here is E. Gitskey & Son, Monroe street, using the Sunflower. I am not quite sure that the last named is using city gas."

President Parsons—"How does this happen, Mr. Secretary?"

Secretary Brown—"I don't know. I can't go around and hunt up those who use burners."

Mr. Backus—"Of course he cannot. He simply takes the report he recives from the consumers."

Under the established rules of the board, Mr. Backus said, only the Argand and Welsbach burners could be used, and yet consumers were using every burner known in the market. He then proceeded to read the names of those using city gas for illuminating purposes. Here are a few:

Bishop Bros., Summit street, 15 Argands.

J. A. Gilsdorf, Adams street,, 8 Argands.

Draper & Nugent, St. Clair street, 25 Jumbo.

Woods Bros., Argand, Sunflower and Jumbo.

J. Young, Erie street, 15 Argands.

R. & M. Melchoir, Summit, 44.

L. M. Jones, Summit, 24 Niagara.

C. Burgoin, Nebraska avenue, 5 Newmarket.

F. Martin, Nebraska avenue, 9 Newmarket.

Woodruff Bros., Cherry street, 13 Newmarket.

La Hood Bros., Cherry street, 12 Niagara.

These are but a few. The total number of tips on the books is 927. Mr. Backus said there should be at least five times this number.

After some discussion the matter was referred to the manager with power to act.

"How and where did you get those figures?" Mr. Parsons asked.

"It don't matter where I got them. It will do to say that they are correct. If the manager comes to me I will give him full particulars."

Secretary Brown reported $10,000 in the treasury.

Dr. Jones, from the committee on claims reported bills due amounting to $1,650. They were ordered paid.

The committee on territory reported favorably on the proposition to buy the Kelly well referred to in yesterday's Bee.

Mr. Backus said he would not vote to buy any more wells until he had heard from the investigating committee. The report was adopted and the proposition accepted.

It was decided to drill a well on the Baird farm in Bloom township.

John McIntyre was given $680 on account for sinking well.

Manager Heston reported the following pounds, rock pressure; flowing pressure, 1 1-2; capacity, 991,370 cubic feet. The Rainsberger well, rock pressure 187; flowing pressure, 3 pounds; capacity, 1,600,000.

An invitation was read from the Lima Natural Gas company asking a representative to be present at a meeting to be held there to-day to take action in the matter of preserving natural gas.

The invitation was accepted, and Manager Heston was appointed to attend the meeting.

Dr. Jones moved that a member of the board be appointed to go with the mayor's committee to Pittsburg to investigate the natural gas pumping apparatus, and that the board pay the expenses of the committee.

Mr. Backus opposed the motion on the ground that he considered the committee fully capable of conducting the investigation.

The motion finally carried, and Mr. Greene was appointed to go to Pittsburg.

LECTURE OF PROF. FISKE

At Memorial Hall Last Evening---A Fine Audience.

Some New Facts Relative to the Discovery of the American Continent Told in an Entertaining Manner.

One of the intellectual treats of the season was Prof. Fiske's lecture on the discovery of America at the Memorial last evening. The hall was crowded with representative students and thinkers of Toledo, an audience that spoke well for the culture of the city, especially when counter attractions were considered.

Prof Fiske is a man of fine presence, an easy speaker, so interested in his subject he carries his listeners with him by the enthusiasm of his desire to make them understand the subject as clearly as he does. He began by asking his hearers to bear in mind that the object of the early navigators was not to discover a continent, but to find an open passage to the eastern shore of Asia, its rich ports and spice islands. It is very difficult, the speaker said, to divest our minds of subsequent geography, and realize how ignorant Europeans were of the shape and extent of the continents of their own hemisphere. The attempted ancient maps mark Hindustan and adjacent countries as they are bounded to-day, when the ancients at this time knew no more of the outlines of the Indian country or of China than they did of the existence of the western continent. Trade was carried on by means of the transfer of cargoes from European vessels to ships from Arabia and the east, and frequently a number of transfers were made during the passage from port to port.

The speaker began with the astronomical and geographical speculations of the learned Egyptian, Claudius Ptolemaeus, whose works were published in the second century, and with little revision were the text books until the time of Copernicus, and whose geography was authority till the great discoveries of the fifteenth century proved beyond cavil its glaring inaccuracies. King John, of Portugal, was foremost in granting means to further these discoveries, and when Columbus left his birthplace, Genoa, bent upon a voyage of discovery, he betook himself to King John and Prince Henry for encouragement and assistance. But Portugal was involved in war and could not give attention to the enterprise; so Columbus went to his rival, Spain, and Queen Isabella became his patron. The existence of an antarctic continent which reached into the frigid zone and north to the mainland of Asia, inclosing the Indian ocean like the Mediterranean sea, was the imagined map of the undiscovered lands and waters. And it was to prove if this were correct and to find a water passage through to the east shore of Asia that Columbus, like other navigators, fitted out his poor little ships for the uncertain voyage. Yet his prime object was to earn money to engage in a crusade to restore the land of the holy sepulcher to the bearers of the cross. The high price put upon his services was what caused King John to turn from his project and leave it for Spain to reap the glory.

After De Gama had really discovered the long-sought passage to India, which was sought, interest in the land that had been reached by Columbus, supposed ocean islands of small importance, began to wane. It is a pathetic story of a great man's disappointment.

Prof. Fiske has made it a point of special study, and is convinced that Columbus knew nothing of the discoveries of the Scandanavians, antedating his own.

The story of the naming of the country was new to some students of history in some of its details. Americus Vespucius was guiltless of any attempt to wear stolen honors. It was supposed that he had discovered the coast line of the Antarctic continent marked on their imaginary map, and in a correspondence between a famous Italian architect, employed in Paris constructing a bridge over the Seine (which is still in fine preservation and daily use), and one of the Medici family in Florence, a patron and friend of Vespucci, it was proposed to name this land of the Novis Mundi (new world) America, and, accordingly, on the revised maps which the Medici caused to be made, it was done.

Vespucci landed at Brazil for the reason that the established line of demarkation between Spanish and Portuguese possessions real and prospective, barred him from going farther north. The extending of the name northward was gradual, as the continent was explored. The families of Vespucci and Columbus were friendly, and the son of Columbus in the biography of his father makes no demur at the name "America." It was purely accidental.

Prof Fiske held the close attention of his audience for two hours, and then they were loth to have him close. Prof. Adams has placed the public under great obligations for bringing the distinguished author and historian to give us, first hands, the fruits of his careful research, and at the time when the subject possesses renewed interest.

A Million-Dollar Real Estate Transfer in Which Ohio People Are Interested.

Chicago, Feb. 23.—A million dollar transfer of Minnesota mineral lands was consummated at the Grand Pacific hotel yesterday. The land in question comprises 7,200 acres, situated in Ramsey and St. Louis counties, Minnesota. The former owner of these lands organized the Itasca Iron Mining company, and after getting $50,000 worth of improved mining machinery and securing the steel for a seven-mile railroad to connect with the Duluth & Winnipeg railroad, were unable to proceed further with the company.

For several days Col. E. D. Sawyer, of Cleveland, O., with Captain Frank Barrett, of Lancaster, O., have been in conference with Gen. J. H. Baker, of St. Paul, who represented Mr. Gamble, the big soap man, and other capitalists interested.

Ex-United States Senator Spooner, said to represent several big senators, were also here bidding for the coveted land. When Col. Sawyer and Captain Barrett received a final telegram from ex-Gov. J. E. Campbell, of Ohio, they went the Spooner people several thousand better, and received the land for nearly $1,000,000.

The new company, with ex-Gov. Campbell as president, and Col. Sawyer, Captain Barrett, Dr. Ford Barrett, C. F. Nestor, and others, as stockholders, will shortly be incorporated as the Buckeye Iron company and work will be commenced immediately.

"What is best to be done is not to be determined before the convention meets, nor perhaps, before the last hours of that convention. It is idle now for any man to name a ticket and I am not an idle man."

Another Gerrymander to be Introduced.

Republicans in the House Do Not Like the Carpenter Bill and Will Change It.

Columbus, O., Feb. 23.—Quite a number of republicans in the house are dissatisfied not only with the senate substitute for Senator Carpenter's bill, but also with the inaction of their fellow republicans in the matter of coming to an agreement, and they have taken the matter in their own hands by formulating a bill which they gave out to-night.

The bill will be offered at the republican caucus if one is held before the senate substitute is read the third time in the house, and if there has been no caucus then the bill will be introduced as a substitute for the substitute.

The member who has the bill and who will introduce it refuses to allow the use of his name in connection therewith. The bill provides for a redistricting a good deal like the law repealed by the democrats, especially in the First and Second districts and in the Twentieth and Twenty-first. It uses the Cuyahoga delegation agreement with a very little modification. There are fourteen republican and seven democratic districts. The districts are as follows:

First and Second districts, republican, same as before the democratic redistricting.

CHARGED WITH BLACKMAIL.

A Big Sensation in East St. Louis.

Rev. Mr. J. M. Laird Arrested for Letters Written to Frank B. Bowman.

St. Louis, Feb. 23.—A sensation was caused in East St. Louis yesterday evening by the arrest of Rev. J. M. Laird, of Gillespie, Macoupin county, on a charge of attempted blackmail preferred by Mr. Frank B. Bowman, the largest land owner and probably the wealthiest man in East St. Louis.

Mr. Bowman received two letters from Rev. Mr. Baird charging him with undue intimacy with Mrs. Laird, and offering to compromise the offense on payment of $1,000 in cash.

Rev. Mr. Laird acknowledges writing the letters, and declares that the intimacy has been going on for some time. He attempts to justify his demand for money on the ground that he is a poor man and deemed the $1,000 would palliate the crime to a certain extent, besides it would teach Mr. Bowman a useful lesson.

STARED AT BY THE DEAD

A Two Days' Vigil Kept by a Corpse.

Alone, Unattended, Desolate—An Experience Possible to so Many Others.

Early one morning recently the guards on the elevated road in New York noticed a middle-aged man apparently kneeling beside an open window. Although it was a raw and cold morning, his head was uncovered. His eyes seemed to be staring intently across the street. All day long, as the trains thundered past, the man seemed still to be watching, and even when night came on a glimpse of a white face could be seen staring out into the darkness. The next morning the guards were all on the lookout, and still the man could be seen with his chin resting on the back of his hand.

Coroner Donlin, who chanced to be looking out of the car window during the day, saw at once that it was no common face that glared at him. He left the train went to the house, and there found kneeling by the window the stiffened corpse of a man. For two days he had kept the vigil of the dead. Awakening in the night alone and oppressed, he had struggled to the window, and, gasping for breath, died. The coroner's explanation revealed the fact that death had been caused by Bright's disease of the kidneys, which came unannounced, sudden and sure.

Sad! Yes, but how common have these sudden deaths become. They give no warning. There is a quick pain, a struggle, and all is over. Statistics show that 90 per cent. of these sudden deaths are caused by kidney disease. Slowly but surely these great organs have been decomposing, and when the climax comes it comes without warning. But there are warnings. The strange pains, peculiar sensations and unaccountable feelings were nature's warnings. They may have been considered only the symptoms of a cold, but all the while disease was working and death surely approaching.

Can nothing be done? Yes; exercise care. Act promptly. Use something to sustain the kidneys. Do, as so many prominent physicians are advising their patients to do, take Warner's Safe Cure. If this great preparation which has saved so many men and women from death by Bright's disease were not a well-known household remedy and the most popular in America, we might hesitate to so warmly indorse it, but being the only absolute specific for this great modern disease, it is commended most unhesitatingly. This entire page could be filled with statements from prominent physicians in both Europe and America of what Safe Cure has done to lessen Bright's disease, prevent female complaints, and check the great physical evils of a modern life. It is no ordinary medicine, but a scientific discovery of the present century. The well-known Dr. James D. Bragg says: "Warner's Safe Cure has proved the best medicine for humanity yet devised."

When the uncertainty of life is remembered; when the certainty of disaster where care is not exercised is realized, the importance of the above truths should come home solemnly to all.

THE LITTLE MAN IN THE ORCHESTRA.

If you would go to the play some night,
You'll see in the orchestra, on the right,
A little man;
And if he doesn't astonish you
With the musical antics he goes through—
Why, nobody can!

First he plays the I-don't-know-what, whose tones
Sound just as if you were hitting bones;
Then, with a jump,
He jangles the chords of the tumty-tum,
And he's sure to be back when the big bass drum
Requires a thump.

Next the what-you-may-call-it must be whacked;
And then from the thingummy he'll extract
A tinny sound;
While the jiggermaree he will wake to life
Till he sets you on edges, like a knife
When it's being ground.

And there are those round brass things, you know;
What's the name they give 'em?—er—er—they go
Ching-ching! ching-ching!
Whenever there comes a big crash
He uses his feet, and makes 'em clash
Like everything!

There's a little bald man on the other side
Who stands up and looks rather dignified;
But don't watch him;
His fiddle's the biggest of all, it's true,
But the only thing he can make it do
Is to go "zim-zim!"

TO THE STUDENTS.

The Ex-President of the United States

Addressed the People of the Athens of the West.

Thousands Listened to His Remarks in Ann Arbor

And Cheered to the Echo His Telling Words.

The Lawyer and His Contact with Constitutional Matters Makes Him a Lover of Things Democratic.

Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen—Among the few holidays which the rush and hurry of American life concede to us, surely no one of a secular character is so suggestive and impressive as the day we celebrate on this occasion. We not only commemorate the birth of the greatest American who ever lived, but we recall as inseparably connected with his career all the events and incidents which led up to the establishment of free institutions in this land of ours, and culminated in the erection of our wondrous nation.

The University of Michigan, therefore, most appropriately honors herself and does a fitting public service, by especially providing for such an observance of the day as is calculated to turn to the contemplation of patriotic duty the thoughts of the young men whom she is soon to send out to take places in the ranks of American citizenship.

I hope it may not be out of place for me to express the gratification it affords me as a member of the legal profession to know that the conduct of these exercises has been committed to the classes of the law department of the university. There seems to me to be a propriety in this, for I have always thought the influence surrounding the practice and study of law should especially induce a patriotic feeling. The business of the profession is related to the enforcement and operation of the laws which govern our people; and its members, more often than those engaged in other occupations, are called to a participation in making these laws. Besides, they are constantly brought to the study of the fundamental law of the land and a familiarity with its history. Such study and familiarity should be sufficient of themselves to increase a man's love of country; and they certainly cannot fail to arouse his veneration for the men who laid the foundation of our nation sure and steadfast in a written constitution, which has been declared by the greatest living English statesmen to be "the most wonderful work ever struck off at a given time by the brain and purpose of man."

Washington had more to do with the formation of our constitution than our enthusiasm for the other phases of the great work he did for his country usually makes prominent. He fought the battles which cleared the way for it. He best knew the need of consolidating under one government the colonies he had made free, and he best knew that without this consolidation, a wasting war, the long and severe privations and sufferings his countrymen had undergone and his own devoted labor in the cause of freedom, were practically in vain. The circular letter he sent to the governors of the states as early as the close of the war of the revolution contained the germ of the constitution; and all this was recognized by his unanimous choice to preside over the convention that framed it. His spirit was in and through it all.

But whatever may be said of the argument presented in support of the propriety of giving the law classes the management of this celebration, it is entirely clear that the university herself furnishes to all her students a most useful lesson, when by decreeing the observance of this day, she recognizes the fact that the knowledge of books she imparts is not a complete fulfillment of her duty, and concedes that the education with which she so well equips her graduates for individual success in life and for business and professional usefulness may profitably be supplemented by the stimulation of their patriotism, and by the direction of their thoughts to subjects relating to their country's welfare. I do not know how generally such an observance of Washington's birthday as has here been established prevails in our other universities and colleges; but I am convinced that any institution of learning in our land which neglects to provide for the instruction and improving observance of this day within its walls falls short of its attainable measure of usefulness and omits a just and valuable contribution to the general good. There is great need of educated men in our public life, but it is the need of educated men with patriotism. The college graduate may be, and frequently is, more unpatriotic and less useful in public affairs than the man who, with limited education, has spent the years when opinions are formed in improving contact with the world instead of being within college walls and confined to the study of books. If it be true, as is often claimed, that the scholar in politics is generally a failure, it may well be due to the fact that during his formative period, when lasting impressions are easily received, his intellect alone has been cultivated at the expense of wholesome and well-regulated sentiment.

I speak to-day in advocacy of this sentiment. If it is not found in extreme and exclusive mental culture, neither is it found in the busy marts of trade, nor in the confusion of bargaining, nor in the mad rush after wealth. Its home is in the soul and memory of man. It reverences traditions, it loves ideas, it cherishes the names and the deeds of heroes and it worships at the shrine of patriotism. I plead for it because there is a sentiment which in some features is distinctively American, that we should never allow to languish.

When we are told that we are a practical and common sense people, we are apt to receive the statement with approval and applause. We are proud of its truth and naturally proud because its truth is attributable to the hard work we have had to do ever since our birth as a nation, and because of the stern labor we still see in our way before we reach our determined destiny. There is cause to suspect, however, that another and less creditable reason for our gratification arises from a feeling that there is something deroically American in treating with indifference or derision all those thing heroically American in treating and palpably pertain to what we call with much satisfaction, practical affairs, but which, if we were entirely frank, we should confess might be called money-getting and the betterment of individual condition. Growing out of this feeling, an increasing disposition is discernible among our people, which begrudges to sentiment any time or attention that might be given to business and which is apt to crowd out of mind any thought not directly related to selfish plans and purposes.

A little reflection ought to convince us that this may be carried much too far. It is a mistake to regard sentiment as merely something, which if indulged, has a tendency to tempt to idle and useless contemplation or retrospection, thus weakening in a people the sturdiness of necessary endeavor and diluting the capacity for national achievement.

The elements which make up the sentiment of a people should not be counted as amiable weaknesses because they are not at all times noisy and turbulent. The gentleness and loveliness of woman do not cause us to forget that she can inspire man to deeds of greatness and heroism; that as wife she often makes man's career nobler and grand, and that as mother she builds and fashions in her sons the strong pillars of a state. So the sentiment of a people which in peace and contentment decks with flowers the temple of their rule may, in rage and fury, thunder at its foundations. Sentiment is the cement which keeps in place the granite blocks of governmental power, or the destructive agency whose explosion heaps in ruins their scattered fragments. The monarch who cares only for his sovereignty and safety, leads his subjects to forgetfulness of oppression by a pretense of love for their traditions; and the ruler who plans encroachments upon the liberties of his people, shrewdly proceeds under the apparent sanction of their sentiment. Appeals to sentiment have led nations to bloody wars which have destroyed dynasties and changed the lines of imperial territory. Such an appeal summoned our fathers to the battle fields where American independence was won, and such an appeal has scattered soldiers' graves all over our land, which mutely give evidence of the power of our government and the perpetuity of our free institutions.

I have thus far spoken of a people's sentiment as something which may exist and be effective, under any form of government, and in any national condition. But the thought naturally follows, that if this sentiment may be so potent in countries ruled by a power originating outside of popular will, how vital must its existence and regulation be among our countrymen, who rule themselves and make and administer their own laws. In lands less free than ours, the control of the governed may be more easily maintained if those who are set over them see fit to make concession to their sentiment; yet, with or without such concession, the strong hand of force may still support the power to govern. But sentiment is the very life blood of our nation. Our government was conceived amid the thunders that echoed "All men are created equal," and it was brought forth while free men shouted "We, the people of the United States." The sentiment of our Fathers, made up of their patriotic intentions, their sincere beliefs, their homely impulses and their noble aspirations, entered into the government they established; and unless it is constantly supported and guarded by a sentiment as pure as theirs, our scheme of popular rule will fail. Another and a different plan may take its place; but this which we hold in sacred trust, as it originated in patriotism, is only fitted for patriotic and honest uses and purposes, and can only be administered in its integrity and intended beneficence, by honest and patriotic men. It can no more be saved nor faithfully conducted by a selfish, dishonest and corrupt people, than a stream can rise above its source or be better and purer than its fountain head.

None of us can be ignorant of the ideas which constitute the sentiment underlying our national structure. We know they are a reverent belief in God, a sincere recognition of the value and power of moral principle and those qualities of heart which make a noble manhood, devotion to unreserved patriotism, love for man's equality, unquestioning trust in poular rule, the exaction of civic virtue and honesty, faith in the saving quality of universal education, protection of a free and unperverted expression of the popular will, and an insistance upon a strict accountability of public officers as servants of the people.

These are the elements of American sentiment; and all these should be found deeply imbedded in the minds and hearts of our countrymen. When any one of them is displaced the time has come when a danger signal should be raised. Their absence among the people of other nations—however great and powerful they may be—can afford us no comfort nor reassurance. We must work out our destiny unaided and alone in full view of the truth, that nowhere so directly and surely as here does the destruction or degeneracy of the people's sentiment undermine the foundations of governmental rule.

Let us not for a moment suppose that we can outgrow our dependence upon this sentiment, nor that in any stage of national advance and development it will be less important. As the love of family and kindred remains to bless and strengthen a man in all the vicissitudes of his mature and busy life, so must our American sentiment with us as a people—a sure hope and reliance in every phase of our country's growth. Nor will it suffice that the factors which compose this sentiment have a sluggish existence in our minds, as articles of an idle faith which we are willing perfunctorily to profess. They must be cultivated as motive priciples. Stimulating us to effort in the cause of good government and constantly warning us against the danger and dishonor of faithlessness to the sacred cause we have in charge and heedlessness of the blessings vouchsafed to us and future generations under our free institutions.

These considerations emphasize the value which should be placed upon every opportunity afforded us for the contemplation of the pure lives and patriotic services of those who have been connected with the controlling incidents of our country's history. Such contemplations cannot fail to reinforce and revive the sentiment absolutely essential to useful American citizenship, nor fail to arouse within us a determination that during our stewardship no harm shall come to the political gifts we hold in trust from the Fathers of the Republic.

It is because George Washington completely represented all the elements of American sentiment, that every incident of his life from his childhood to his death is worth recalling—whether it impresses the young with the beauty and value of moral traits, or whether it exhibits to the wisest and oldest an example of sublime accomplishment and the highest possible public service. Even the anecdotes told of his boyhood have their value. I have no sympathy with those who in these latter days attempt to shake our faith in the authenticity of these stories, because they are not satisfied with the evidence in their support, or because they do not seem to accord with the conduct of boys in this generation. It may well be, that the stories should stand and the boys of the present day be pitied. At any rate these anecdotes have answered an important purpose; and in the present state of the proofs, they should, in my opinion, be believed. The cherry tree and the hatchet incident and its companion declaration that the Father of his Country never told a lie, have indelibly fixed upon the mind of many a boy the importance of truthfulness. Of all the legends containing words of advice and encouragement which hung upon the walls of the little district-house where a large share of my education was gained, I remember but one, which was in these words: "George Washington had only a common school education."

I will not plead guilty to the charge of dwelling upon the little features of a great subject. I hope the day will never come when American boys cannot know of some trait or some condition in which they may feel that they ought to be or are like George Washington. I am not afraid to assert that a multitude of men can be found in every part of our land, respected for their probity and worth, and most useful to the country and to their fellow men, who will confess their indebtedness to the story of Washington and his hatchet. And many a man has won his way to honor and fame notwithstanding limited school advantages, because he found hope and incentive in the high mission Washington accomplished with only a common school education. These are not little and trivial things. They guide and influence the forces which make the character and sentiment of a great people.

I should be ashamed of my country, if in further speaking of what Washington has done for the sentiment of his countrymen, it was necessary to make any excuse for a reference to his constant love and reverence, as a boy and man, for his mother. This filial love is an attribute of American manhood, a badge which invites our trust and confidence and an indispensable element of American greatness. A man may compass important enterprises, he may become famous, he may win the applause of his fellows, he may even do public service and deserve a measure of popular approval, but he is not right at heart and can never be truly great if he forgets his mother.

In the latest biography of Washington we find the following statement concerning his mother: "That she was affectionate and loving cannot be doubted, for she retained to the last a profound hold upon the reverential devotion of her son; and yet as he rose steadily to the pinnacle of human greatness she could only say that 'George had been a good boy and she was sure he would do his duty.'"

I cannot believe that the American people will consider themselves called upon to share the deprecatory feeling of the biographer, when he writes that the mother of Washington could "only" say of her son, that she believed he would be faithful to the highest earthly trusts, because he had been good, nor that they will regard her words merely as an amiably tolerated expression of a fond mother. If they are true to American sentiment they will recognize in this language the announcement of the important truth that under our institutions and scheme of government goodness such as Washington's is the best guaranty for the faithful discharge of public duty. They will certainly do well for the country and for themselves, if they adopt the standard the intuition of this noble woman suggests as the measure of their trust and confidence. It means the exaction of moral principle and personal honor and honesty and goodness as indispensable credentials to political preferment.

I have referred only incidently to the immense influence and service of Washington in forming our constitution. I shall not dwell upon his lofty patriotism, his skill and fortitude as the military commander who gained our independence, his inspired wisdom, patriotism and statesmanship as the first president of the republic, his constant love for his countrymen and his solicitude for their welfare at all times. The story has been often told, and is familiar to all. If I should repeat it I should only seek to present further and probably unnecessary proof of the fact that Washington embodied in his character and exemplified in his career that American sentiment in which our government had its origin and which I believe to be a condition necessary to our healthful national life.

I have not assumed to instruct you. I have merely yielded to the influence of the occasion and attempted to impress upon you the importance of cultivating and maintaining true American sentiment, suggesting that as it has been planted and rooted in the moral faculties of our countrymen, it can only flourish in their love of truth and honesty and virtue and goodness. I believe that God has so ordained it for the people he has selected for his special favor; and I know that the decrees of of God are never obsolete.

I beg you therefore to take with you when you go forth to assume the obligations of American citizenship, as one of the best gifts of your alma mater, a strong and abiding faith in the value and potency of a good conscience and a pure heart. Never yield one iota to those who teach that these are weak and childish things, not needed in the struggle of manhood with the stern realities of life. Interest yourself in public affairs as a duty of citizenship; but do not surrender your faith to those who discredit and debase politics by scoffing at sentiment and principle, and whose political activity consists in attempts to gain popular support by cunning devices and shrewd manipulation. You will find plenty of those who will smile at your profession of faith and tell you that truth and virtue and honesty and goodness were well enough in the old days when Washington lived, but are not suited to the present size and development of our country and the progress we have made in the art of political management. Be steadfast. The strong and sturdy oak stil needs the support of its native earth, and as it grows in size and spreading branches its roots must strike deeper in the soil which warmed and fed its first tender sprout. You will be told that the people no longer have any desire for the things you profess. Be not deceived. The people are not dead, but sleeping. They will awaken in good time, and scourge the money changers from their sacred temple.

You may be chosen to public office. Do not shrink from it, for holding office is also a duty of citizenship. But do not leave your faith behind you. Every public office, small or great, is held in trust for your fellow citizens. They differ in importance, in responsibility and in the labor they impose; but the duties of none of them can be well performed if the mentorship of a good conscience and pure heart be discarded. Of course, other equipment is necessary, but without this mentorship all else in insufficient. In times of gravest responsibility it will solve your difficulties; in the most trying hour it will lead you out of your perplexities, and it will at all times deliver you from temptation.

In conclusion let me remind you that we may all properly learn the lesson appropriate to Washington's birthday if we will; and that we shall fortify ourselves against the danger of falling short in the discharge of any duty pertaining to citizenship, if being thoroughly imbued with true American sentiment and the moral ideas which support it, we are honestly true to ourselves.

"To thine own self be true,
And it must follow as the night the day;
Thou cans't not then be false to any man."

Immediately following the lecture a popular reception was held by the distinguished guests at the court house and later in the evening they returned to Detroit.

Edward S. Willard in The Middleman To-Night.

The Fairies' Well at the People's All This Week—Mr. and Mrs. Kendal.

W. H. Powers' company in "The Fairies' Well," opened at the People's theater last night for a week's engagement, and the performance was witnessed by a good-sized audience. The play contains little of merit as a drama and most of the situations are strained and unnatural. The company is a fair one with good specialties, but rather weak in acting ability. This is excepting John F. Ward, whose "Andy Coogan" was a fine bit of character work, easy and natural, his singing was also highly enjoyed. George Timmons with his harps and songs, the Silver Bell quartet, and Wm. McGonigle in an Irish jig and reel dance were the main features of the performance and they were greeted with hearty applause.

Edward S. Willard.

Edward S. Willard first attained distinction in the English provinces as a light comedian; then he won fame in London as a villain; then he went into the psychological roles, and afterward took up character work, infusing thereinto something of romance, of homely pathos and of melodramatic fervor. Those who have studied the man predict that he will make a sensation in critical circles when he goes into Shakespearean roles. He is making a furore everywhere this season. He is only 38 years old, and is already hailed as "The hope of the English stage." He went on the boards when but a lad of 16 and has arrived at almost the highest round of the histrionic ladder, while yet he is a young man.

"The Middleman," which he presents at Wheeler's to-night, furnishes Mr. Willard his favorite role. Cyrus Blenkarn, the old porter. It is difficult to believe, after seeing Mr. Willard in this part, that his reputation was first made in England as a light comedian with the elder Sothern and other lights of comely.

Mr. and Mrs. Kendal.

Mr. and Mrs. Kendal, who make their first appearance in this city at the Wheeler opera house next Saturday night, will present Olnet's popular play, "The Ironmaster." Few, if any foreign actors have ever created such a favorable impression in this country as they, fully bearing out all the many good things heard of them from the other side. The chief charm of both Mr. and Mrs. Kendal's acting is their ease and the wonderful way in which they identify themselves with their parts.

Held by the Enemy.

The production of Held by the Enemy, which is from the pen of Wm. Gillette, is one of the dramatic successes of the times, and, though seen in our city before, there should be an overflowing audience at the People's next Monday night. The action of the play takes place in a southern city, occupied by the United States forces during the civil war, and the interest never flags from the rise of the curtain on the first act until the fall at the close.

For the Day Nursery.

School, which, by the way, is the prettiest play Robertson ever wrote, has been in rehearsal for six weeks, and its presentation on Friday evening at Wheeler's will be perfectly correct in every detail. The young ladies and gentlemen who impersonate the characters have worked hard and faithfully, and will give a performance entirely free from farce and specialties.

UGLIEST PERSON IN LONDON.

A very singular bet was once made in relation to the master of the revels to George II., named Heidegger, who was declared to be the ugliest person in the world. One of the king's courtiers wagered that he would produce a person the judges would pronounce uglier than Heidegger. The courtier was allowed three days in which to unearth his champion. These three days he spent in personally ransacking Whitechapel, St. Giles and other quarters of London most frequented by the lowest of the slums. Somewhere in St. Giles he found an old woman whose features were sufficiently diabolical to be put up against Heidegger. When the two were brought face to face the judges declared that it was impossible to decide which was worthy of the title of "the ugliest person in London." A friend of Heidegger suggested that the worthy put on the old woman's bonnet. This he did, and the additional ugliness it gave him was such that he was unanimously declared the winner.—St. Louis Republic.

GEORGE AND MARTHA

Were Out at the Asylum Last Evening.

Washington's Birthday Was Duly Celebrated—The Affair a Grand Success—Honors Distributed.

George was there and so was Martha. At the asylum, of course. For the anniversary of the birth of the Father of His Country was duly celebrated by the patients last evening with a grand masque ball. The floor of the amusement hall was a mass of fantastic coloring. Every nationality was represented. Peasants danced with lords and dukes. The nobility mingled with the plebians and quaffed pleasure from the same glass.

There were Watteau Shepherdesses, Italian counts, soldiers, sailors, negroes, Dutchmen, Irishmen, and in fact everything and everybody. It was very queer, too, everybody spoke English fluently. The asylum orchestra struck up the grand march and the vari-colored stream stepped out into the mazy, led by George and Martha Washington, in the persons of Dr. Faber and Miss Williams, who, of course, were awarded first prize for their make-up, which was really first class.

Many of the attendants and quite a number of patients were masked, and nearly all the costumes were original and very funny. One patient was dressed as an Italian brigand and carried a stuffed boy on his back. He had labeled the exhibit "George and his pa." Another dancer was rigged out as "Mamma's Little Pet."

Misses Carrie Beatty, Edna Millard, Grace Beatty and Messrs. Nelson Buck, George Millard and George W. Stevens were appointed a committee to decide who should carry off the honors of the evening.

It was decided that Mrs. Kate Rielly looked the prettiest; Louis Allievi, the chef of the institution, who posed as a clown, the funniest, and Philip Aegan was the best disguised.

Misses Reisa and Tody were the prettiest couple. They appeared as shepherdesses; Misses Hughes and Eisenbise were the funniest couple, as two negro wenches, under a mammoth umbrella. The best disguised couple were Messrs. Willard and Harris, who were disguised as nuns.

The affair was thoroughly enjoyed by the patients and all concerned. Dr. and Mrs. Tupper mingled among the dancers and guests and made everybody feel at ease. There is no doubt about it, George and Martha were there.

VOIT CONFIRMED

By the Council in Joint Session Assembled.

The General Street Railway Ordinance Passed by the Aldermen—Other City Legislation.

Mayor Emmick's tenacity on the appointment of Reynold Voit as gas trustee has won at last. The members of the council were finally whipped into line, and at the joint session last evening the appointment was confirmed. The members absent from the meeting were Councilmen Bay, Coleman, Gill, Pheatt and Walker, all democrats.

The vote on the confirmation of the appointment was as follows: Ayes—Albrecht, Caldwell, Doner, Marganthaler, Morris, Rutherford, Tanner, Hassenzahl, Graham, Macomber, Morgan, Peiter, Potter and Leroux—14; noes—Lee, Neuendorf, Schmuhl, Swain, Taylor, Everett, Hartford and Huberich—8.

By this it will be seen that the members of either party did not stand together, but voted as they pleased, notwithstanding the caucuses held by both sides.

Messrs. C. A. King and E. D. Potter were elected members of the board of trustees of the public library, and the joint session adjourned.

The board of aldermen then settled down to business, and soon finished the schedule.

The only new business was an ordinance from the ways and means committee raising the salary of the assistant city solicitor from $1,200 to $1,500. This ordinance was amended to also raise the salary of the mayor's clerk from $40 per month to $60. The ordinance was then passed.

From the committee on printing the resolution to reject bids and readvertise for proposals for doing the city printing was adopted.

Ordinances were passed to pave Fifteenth street from Monroe street to Jefferson, and to open Butler street from Navarre avenue to Earl street.

Resolutions were adopted to grade Williams street from Oliver street to Broadway and to pave the same street from St. Clair to Broadway, also to build a sewer in Frederick street and alley and to extend the time for the completion of sewer No. 271.

An ordinance was passed accepting the plat of Hiett's subdivision of lots in Stickney's addition.

A number of resolutions recommended by the judiciary committee were adopted.

City Solicitor Read reported back to the council the action of the board of revision in the case of deputy police clerk Samuel F. Tanner, and the report was placed on file.

Mr. Hartford, from the police committee, introduced a resolution, which was adopted, providing for a partition in the police matron's room at the police station, the cost not to exceed $125.

The ordinance from the council board accepting the plat of Wheeling addition was referred back to the committee on motion of Mr. Hartford.

Other matters from the lower board were adopted.

The general street railway ordinance came up for a third reading, and was passed, so that it now only awaits the mayor's signature.

At a meeting of the members of the Cutchee Veese Oswal castle, held lately at Mandvie Bender, Hindustan, it was resolved that instead of a ring women should wear a flower in the nose. Inasmuch as the nose ring had led to much unfavorable comment, henceforth wearing nose rings would lead to a fine of 10 rupees and 4 annas, in addition to forfeiture of the ornaments.

A WOMAN'S HEART.

I.

The thousandth time sweet little Eva dies,
While light blue angels flutter from the flies—
My lady weeps.
The heavy villain slays the heroine,
Stabs two bad actors with a yard of tin,
And drives the hero to forget, in gin—
My lady weeps.
Her lovely bosom palpitates with sighs,
She spoils a handkerchief to dry her eyes.

II.

Outside a gaunt, wan beggar crouches low,
Crying for alms amidst the drifted snow—
She hears the cry.
She sees the babe, whose starving lips are pressed
To the stopped fountains of its mother's breast—
She hears the cry.
Then lifts her satins from the velvet floor,
And trips demurely to her carriage door
Saying "These filthy beggars are a bore"—
And passes by.
—Chicago Times.

HERO OF SALTHAM PIT.

Every one that knows anything about coal mines knows that the great Saltham pit lies just on the edge of the city of Whitehaven, and extends thence far under the sea.

In the summer of 18— two ladies came to Whitehaven for the purpose of establishing their right to shares in the pit—a right which they had recently discovered. They were a mother and her daughter, both of them cultured and beautiful women, and as they had brought letters of introduction to the rector they were soon recognized as belonging to one of the most desirable "sets" of that old aristocratic city.

Indeed, Mary Allonby was a universal favorite, and before the first winter was over it was generally understood that she was the promised wife of the handsome Gerald Peel, a young man of very good family and of great promise. He was the head "Viewer" of the Saltham pit, and knew well the richness and excellence of its coal seams. Now, the Viewer of a large English coal mine is a gentleman; a man of great courage, forethought and fine engineering skill. He has a large salary, lives in good style and good society, and exercises a great power, not only over the under-viewers, but also in the entire management of the pit.

The marriage had been fixed for June, and the preparations were all made. Mrs. Allonby was so certain of her rights being settled by that date, that she had instructed her lawyer to make over a certain portion of them to her daughter as a wedding present. One evening Gerald was taking tea with them, and from the pleasant room happy laughter and happy voices went floating outward into the shady depths of the shrubbery.

Among this shrubbery a man was lurking—a man with dirty, ragged clothing and a face passion-smitten and every way evil; and whenever Mrs. Allonby's voice or Mary's laugh caught his ear, its expression was almost terrible.

"I am nothing to them now!" he muttered. "But we shall see! We shall see!"

He lingered in the thick shrubbery until the moon rose, and he saw Gerald wrap Mary in her little white hood and cloak. Then he crept nearer the house and watched Mrs. Allonby lift a candle and go up stairs into a room that fronted two ways, one of them toward a gable which was thickly covered with an old ivy vine. The windows were open on that side and he cautiously ascended. When he reached the upper floors Mrs. Allonby was sitting before an old-fashioned secretary tying up some papers. He put his hand upon her shoulder, forced her to sit still, and uttered but one word:

"Louisa!"

She did not faint nor scream, nor even attempt to rise; but gathering rapidly together all her senses and energies she looked the man earnestly in the face, and said, in a voice wherein tenderness and anger strove for the mastery:

"Richard Allonby!"

"Yes, madam. Lock your doors and shut your windows. I have something to say to you."

"Not here, Richard. Not here, for Mary's sake!"

"Why not? Am I not your husband? Ah, ha! You can't get over that, you see!"

"God help me! No."

She rose mechanically, locked the door, shut out the sweet evening air, pulled down the blinds, and then, motioning toward a sofa, sat down.

"Oh, no, my lady! I won't put you to that degradation. You are a lady, you know," and then in a lower voice: "And now I want you to give me those Saltham papers. I know all about them."

"Richard, you have robbed me of my own fortune, and of the peace and love of my youth. You killed my father with the shame you brought on him. You have forced me to leave the place where my family have dwelt for centuries, and to come a stranger to this strange north country. Do have pity now on me and on your own child. For heaven's sake spare her the disgrace and misery of knowing you."

"You never told her, then?"

"No, no, no! She thinks you dead—and, oh, Richard! she is going to be married."

"I know that, too. Give me the papers. I have been long enough here."

"Richard! Richard! kill me if you like, but do Mary no further wrong."

"I don't like to kill you, Louisa. I like you well enough to look at you occasionally. Give me the papers, or I shall ring the bell and order my supper. You know I'm master here, if I say so. See, I'll give you five minutes to decide. I don't want you to say I forced them from you."

In great emergencies the mind acts rapidly. Mrs. Allonby reviewed her whole position and made her decision. She walked back to the secretary and, taking from a drawer a bundle of papers and a little gold chain holding a pearl cross and a couple of rings, came toward her husband.

"This is to be our last meeting, Richard, and you must promise it upon that chain and those rings; you know them—they were your mother's."

Richard Allonby put them aside nervously. If there was any memory that made his soul shiver and sob it was that of the gentle little mother whose heart he had broken.

"I won't touch those things," he said; "give me the papers."

"Not unless you do what I say."

Richard saw his wife's courage rising, and he knew well that when timid women are angered to a point of resistance such anger is not to be defied; so he said, sullenly:

"I will do as you wish."

He took the papers and immediately departed. He had another interview on hand that night. He waited until he saw Gerald enter his own handsome dwelling; then he scaled the great brick walls and watched his further movements. He went, as Richard expected, to his office, looked over the reports of the under-viewers and then lit a cigar and sat down to smoke. There was a low, open window, opening on a stone balcony, and when Gerald rose for something he wanted, Richard boldly entered the room, and was standing before his chair when he turned to it.

Gerald's first thought was: "There is something wrong at the pit," and he said impatiently:

"Now, my man, what's wrong?"

"I am not your man, Gerald Peel. I propose, indeed, to be your father-in-law."

Then Gerald knew that he had either to deal with a lunatic or a great sorrow, and he closed the window and said:

"Sit down, sir, and say what you have got to say."

Richard did not spare himself. He told all: How he had killed his mother with sorrow and ruined his wife, forged his friend's name and been forgiven, and then robbed a bank and been transported for 14 years for it. He said he had come back to England 18 months ago, but had only just found his wife. Didn't want to make trouble, "especially as Mary was going to marry so well, and thought Gerald had better give him some money and let him go to America."

Gerald heard all in silence; then taking out his purse counted out £20.

"Will that pay you to hold your tongue?"

"Make it fifty."

Gerald made it fifty and said:

"Now go. If you really go to America, you may write every year for the same; but don't annoy your wife and daughter. Let me stand between them and you."

The calm unselfishness and the air of authority which was partly natural to Gerald and partly acquired by the necessity of his position, cowed the wretched man. He slunk out into the darkness; and Gerald thought out the new aspect of his position.

He must hurry forward his marriage. Mary was not to blame; but if his family knew there would be no end of trouble. And these poor women! Surely they needed his protection, with this villain dogging their footsteps.

The next morning he received another heavy blow. Mrs. Allonby had told him that her secretary had been robbed of her Saltham papers and some jewelry, and that the police had been notified. He saw at once how the affair lay. He knew who was the thief, and he suspected Mrs. Allonby knew also. But he had determined not to blame her too much. He estimated the horrer of her position, and boldly faced the disappointment that had fallen on all the glory of his love. But, at any rate, Mary was the same, and it was Mary he was going to marry. He made some excuse for hurrying forward matters, and in spite of the suggestions of his friends that the missing papers ought to be found first, he married Mary Allonby early in June.

Perhaps no wife was ever happier. As the years went by, and lovely boys and girls began to patter about the halls and gardens of Peel Place, and as she herself grew in wifely grace, and in her husband's love, she acknowledged continually the blessing of her lot. Only one thing troubled her—her mother's health. Though in the prime of life, she was gradually sinking under a nervous complaint that defied medical skill. Gerald, who guessed the cause, tried often to win her confidence, but she repulsed all his advances.

Thus more than five years passed away. One night about New Year, the rector was sitting among his household, full of the joy and spirit of the time. Suddenly he was called away from them, and found waiting for him a lady in the wildest terror and distress, whom he easily recognized as Mrs. Allonby.

"Oh, sir!" she cried; "there is no time for words—come with me instantly to Saltham pit! I will explain as we go."

There was something so compelling in a great sorrow, that he choked himself silently and followed her into a waiting carriage. As it drove through the narrow black streets, she told him the outlines of her sad story.

"And this villain, who has been torturing you to death for five years, is you say—"

"Is my husband, and he is lying, dying, in the pit. A large mass of coal fell on him this afternoon and he can't be moved. What could I do?" she cried, pitifully. "How can I tell Gerald and Mary of the horror of such a connection? Oh, my friend, some one must speak to him—some one must pray with him—and I must see the end of him, but I dare not go alone."

Indeed, even the poor rector turned sick and giddy when he saw the road they must take. The shaft of Saltham is close to the sea, absolutely in the shingle, and nearly 900 feet deep. The banksman expressed no surprise at such visitors, and, as they refused to change their clothing, gave them each a large overall, and putting them into the huge basket, let them down. The night relays were coming up, and a basket of five men, their candles gleaming in the dark abyss, passed them on the way.

In a few minutes they touched the ground and a craggy, dark, uneven descent led them to the interior of the pit. The path was high enough to allow them to follow their guide in an uprightposition. After going 1,000 yards in a straight line under the sea, they came to a little opening, where the dying man lay. The space was narrow and hot and dimly lit by a bit of candle stuck against the coal wall in a piece of clay, and there were some men yet at work about him.

He was almost dead, but his eyes gleamed gratefully upon the miserable, weeping wife, who had at last braved all to come and close his eyes. And, incredible as it may seem, at this hour Louisa Allonby forgot all else but her early love for this wreck of humanity and wiped the death-damp from is brow with loving hands and whispered words of forgiveness and tenderness.

Richard was gentle enough now. In those few hours of agony he learned more than all his wild life had taught him. Humble and penitent, he listened eagerly to the last prayer he was ever to hear, and then whispered:

"Wife—wife, forgive me—don't tell Mary the papers are in my breast."

What more he said was between God and his own soul, and death gradually composed the once handsome face into such solemn curves and such sharp-cut lines as if they were to last forever.

At length poor Louisa rose, and the rector was about to lead her away, when one of the men who had been busy trying to the last to relieve the poor miner, stepped forward and said gently:

"Mother, I am here too."

Yes, it was Gerald Peel; he had been notified at once of the accident, and none had worked harder for the relief of the sufferer. But he went home with the rector and Mrs. Allonby now, and the talk he had with her did for her what no physician could have done. She learned now that Gerald had not only married Mary with a full knowledge of all, but that he had been holding the man and watching continually his movements, in order to prevent his annoying Mary or her mother.

"It has been a dreadful watch," he said, wearily and solemnly; "but a little confidence on your part, mother, might have saved us both much suffering."

And for an answer she put the Saltham papers in his hands, and said:

"They are well yours. I never want to see them again, Gerald. You have been very good to me."

Those men were heroes who stormed the Malakoff and lit their cigars in the trenches before Vicksburg, but private life has heroes quite as great, and I think that Gerald Peel's five-years' patience, prudence and unselfish burden bearing may make him the brother knight even of the peerless Bayard.—Amelia E. Barr in New York Ledger.

Restoring Impoverished Land.

On the subject of restoring impoverished land, of which there are millions of acres in the south, a writer to an eastern exchange says: We do not accept the idea of as much wornout land as some would claim. If it may be said of a field that it is wornout, we should say let it go; don't spend any energies upon any such field, but rather work upon such fields that are not wornout; make them vastly better by the labor and expenditure that would be required to restore a wornout field. A wearing out may consist only of injudicious cropping or treatment, and only requires a change of base. It must be remembered that nature is a bountiful provider, and that the soil has locked within its recesses elements of fertility which, by a suitable application of manurial substances, may be rendered available. Because a soil will not produce certain crops is no certain indication of being wornout; while it may be exhausted of all the principal elements, it may be so unbalanced by the absence of one element as to render it unsuitable for cropping. This fact demonstrates the necessity for individual experimentations.

On the other hand, the Country Gentleman, one of the best agricultural authorities in this country, says in answer to an inquiry which comes from Powhatan county, Va., in regard to red and gray clays that will yield fair crops of corn but little clover: If there is any peculiarity of the soil unfavorable to the growth of clover, it is probable that some special application may remove the difficulty, such as lime, ashes, manure, super-phosphates, kainit, etc. It would be worth while to measure off a few square rods and apply these substances separately, to precede a few of the leading farm crops. The results ascertained by measuring might be of great value for a large area. Fertility cannot be restored without cost, and if the clover crop is small at first a repeated repetition of it with other fertilizers may be the best thing. The ground should be handsomely prepared by finely pulverizing the surface in connection with the fertilizers mentioned.

HAVE YOU THE GRIPPE?

Many People Have It and Do No Know It.—How to Recognize the Symptoms and How to Treat Them.

Hundreds of people have the Grippe who do not know it. Not necessarily the final stages, but the first stages. They feel pains in the head, and a bad taste in the mouth, get tired and despondent, have chilly sensations, limbs and muscles ache. In some cases these things are overlooked. In most cases perhaps they are considered simply a slight cold. In nearly every case they indicate the coming of Grippe.

There is but one thing to do when these symptoms appear, and that is to take prompt and vigorous measures, to fortify nature to repel the enemy. A little well directed effort at just the right time will accomplish very much more than labored efforts afterwards. There is but one thing to be done, and that is to use a pure stimulant, something that will promptly arrest, and in no way injure, something endorsed by scientists, recommended by physicians, and popular because so efficient—Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey. Two years ago, and last year when the Grippe was raging, this was the standard remedy used, and recommended by the profession. It did more to prevent the Grippe than all other known or recommended remedies. It preserved many people in health who would otherwise have been grievously sick, perhaps even worse. It is as efficient to-day as ever. It should be borne in mind that other so-called whiskies may not be so efficient, and if any dealer asserts that such whiskies are the same, distrust him at once. There is but one medicinal whiskey and that is Duffy's Pure Malt.

THE GALLERY LINE.

It was the matinee day of a Third avenue popular-price theater, says the New York Advertiser.

Five minutes had to elapse before the gallery doors would be opened, and a line of boys stretched from the barred portals clear around the nearest corner. They ran rather small—a fact noticed by a big, hulking fellow who paused to scan the bill-boards, and after a moment of deliberation he pushed himself into the line within a dozen or so of the head.

There was a rumble of indignation from the entire column.

"Cum orf."

"Cheese it."

"Chase yerself."

The intruder calmly ignored these requests and, putting his hands in his pockets, leaned carelessly against the wall.

There was a rustle of preparatory action along the line.

"Slug him, fellys!" shrieked a grimy-faced bootblack.

And they slugged him.

It was like a swarm of wasps attacking a young black bear, and in a remarkably short space of time the enemy was knocked into a cocked hat.

This business being adjusted the waiting column rearticulated itself.

The right of properly acquired precedence upon the gallery line is sacred in the unwritten code of the small boy about town, and he will protect it even though the heavens fall.

A SOCIAL EVENT.

The announcement that the Duke and Duchess of Marlborough are coming to this country to reside is calculated to cause a distressing agitation in society. On the one hand the duke is a real duke and the duchess is a real duchess, and the awe and reverence with which society contemplates a real duke and duchess are sentiments deeply interwoven with the fundamental principles of society.

On the other hand the duke and duchess are coming over here, not because they love American society, but because English society does not love them. The duke, although a real duke, has been a very bad boy—so very bad indeed, that the Prince of Wales' mamma will not let him associate with the duke, and the question is, if this is the position of the dear prince, what are we to do? This is the question which cannot fail to agitate society in a painful manner. The only consolation is that there are about 65,000,000 people in the country who don't care a continental whether the duke and duchess live here or not.—New York World.

IO VICTIS.

I sing the hymn of the conquered—who fell
In the battle of life,
The hymn of the wounded, the beaten, who died o'erwhelmed in the strife.
Not the jubilant songs of the victors, for whom the resounding acclaim
Of nations was lifted in chorus, whose brows wore the chaplet of fame—
But the hymn of the low and the humble,
the weary, the broken in heart,
Who strove and who failed—acting bravely
a silent and desperate part;
Whose youth bore no flower on its branches,
whose hopes burned in ashes away,
From whose hands slipped the prize they had grasped at, who stood at the dying of day
With the wreck of their life all around them
—unpitied, unheeded, alone—
With death swooping down on their failure, and all but their faith overthrown;
While the voice of the world shouts its chorus—its paen for those who have won—
While the trumpet is sounding triumphant,
and high to the breeze and the sun
Glad banners are waving—hands clapping—and hurrying feet
Thronging after the laurel-crowned victors—
I stand on the field of defeat
In the shadow—with those who have fallen, and wounded, and dying, and there
Chant a requiem low, place my hand on their pain-knotted brows, breathe a prayer;
Hold the hand that is helpless and whisper—
"They only the victory win,
Who have fought the good fight and have vanquished the demon that tempts us within;
Who have held to their faith unseduced by the prize that the world holds on high,
Who have dared for a high cause to suffer,
resist, fight—if need be, to die."
Speak, History! Who are life's victors? Unroll thy long annals, I say—
Are they those whom the world calls the victors, who won the success of a day?
The martyrs or Nero? The Spartans who fell at Thermopylae's tryst,
Or the Persians and Xerxes? His judges or Socrates? Pilate or Christ?

Notice to Surveyors.

To the Auditor of Lucas County, Ohio:

Dear Sir—In accordance with a resolution of the county commissioners dated February 24th, 1891, the undersigned took observations to ascertain the declination of the magnetic meridian and respectfully reports the following:

Six readings were taken from each of the vernliers ("A" and "B") at the north and south ends of the established meridian line, the average of which readings shows a declination of the needle from the true meridian of 31 minutes, 30 seconds, west of north.

Instrument used—a Beckman transit, number 914.

I hereby certify that the foregoing is a correct report of observations of the declination of the magnetic from the true meridian.

Respectfully submitted,
H. W. WILHELM,
Lucas County Surveyor.
